

SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION -FORM 13909

1. Who is the Freedom Foundation (according to its Form 1023)?

The Freedom Foundation (the "Foundation") was formed with the Washington Secretary of State on January 4, 1991, and its then-Chairman of the Board appears to have signed its Form 1023 that same day. A copy of the Foundation's Form 1023 (with attachments) is attached hereto as Attachment 1.

Notably, both the Foundation's Articles of Incorporation and Bylaws that were provided with its exemption application state that "the [Foundation] is established exclusively as an educational organization under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986." The bylaws then state that the organization's goals and objectives include upholding and strengthening the fundamental principles of individual liberty and productive free enterprise, which would include, among other things, the maintenance of "regular and bipartisan communication with elected officials and community and business leaders." See Articles of Incorporation at Article III, Paragraph 2; see also Bylaws at Article III, Paragraph 2.

The meeting minutes from the Foundation's January 25, 1991 Board Meeting¹ hint at some of the issues that—as demonstrated in this package—would later become significant for the Foundation. Those minutes state that the Board "began by reviewing the Foundation's purpose," and subsequently decided that "a little tightening up and clarifying was in order." The Board, however, decided to put that discussion off in the interest of filing the Foundation's exemption application as soon as possible.

The Foundation's description of its proposed activities include "standard" descriptions of seminars, debates, town hall meetings, and other settings in which the public would be welcome to participate and share ideas. Also included in its application, though, is a proposed fundraising letter from Bob Williams, one of the organization's founders. That letter is attached hereto as Attachment 2. In addition to noting that he had "been involved in an extensive campaigns and [had] had the opportunity to meet with dozens and dozens of elected officials,” Mr. Williams states that “we [the Foundation] must become aggressive and proactive with our own limited, common sense agenda.” The letter looks extremely similar to the letter written by the organization seeking a tax exemption in PLR 200602042 (discussed herein)—and that organization was ultimately denied its requested §501(c)(3) exemption.

Unfortunately, becoming aggressive—particularly in the political arena—is just what the Foundation did. A description of their more recent activities appears in Section 3 below.

2. What Does the Law Say?

Before “digging in” to the Foundation’s more recent activities, it may be helpful to first review the applicable law that governs any §501(c)(3) organization (including the Foundation). The following summary will aid in putting the Foundation’s activities into context.

- a. The Operational Test and Status as an Action Organization. It is well-settled that, in order to qualify as exempt from federal taxation under §501(c)(3), an organization must be organized and operated exclusively for the purposes specified in that section—which includes, among other things, educational purposes. See 26 USC §501(c)(3); see also Rev. Proc. 86-43. While the organizational test looks exclusively to an organization’s governing documents, the operational test takes a detailed look at the organization’s current and proposed activities.

Treas. Reg. §501(c)(3)-1(c) specifies that an organization “will be regarded as operated exclusively for one or more exempt purposes only if it engages primarily in activities which accomplish one or more” of the exempt purposes identified in §501(c)(3). That regulation specifically excludes “action organizations” from the scope of exempt organizations, as such an organization “is not operated exclusively for...exempt purposes.” Treas. Reg. §501(c)(3)-1(c)(3). That section goes on to define an “action organization” as one that meets any one of the following definitions:

- Devotes a substantial amount of its activities on “attempting to influence legislation by propaganda or otherwise.”² If the organization either: (i) “contacts, or urges the public to contact, members of a legislative body for the purpose of proposing, supporting, or opposing legislation;” or (ii) advocates for the adoption or rejection of legislation, the organization will be considered to have “satisfied” this requirement;

² The Foundation appears to spend a substantial amount of time on lobbying activities; this letter, however, will focus on only prohibited political activity.

- The regulations also state that an organization will be considered an “action” organization—and cannot qualify for a tax exemption under §501(c)(3)—if it “participates or intervenes, directly or indirectly, in any political campaign on behalf of or in opposition to any candidate for public office;”
- Finally, an organization is an action organization if: (i) its main or primary objective or objectives may be attained only by legislation or a defeat or proposed legislation; and (ii) it advocates or campaigns for the attainment of such main or primary objective or objectives as distinguished from engaging in nonpartisan analysis, study, or research and making the results thereof available to the public.

Based on this definition, the Foundation easily qualifies as an “action organization” under the second prong of this test, and is therefore ineligible to be treated as a §501(c)(3) organization.

- b. The Definition of “Educational.” A number of authorities also address what activities, exactly, qualify as “educational”—and those authorities make it extremely clear that “action organizations” cannot qualify as educational, despite toned-down descriptions of the organization’s activities in its Form 1023 and Forms 990.

Treas. Reg. §501(c)(3)-1(3)(i) provides that while “an organization may be educational even though it advocates a particular position or viewpoint,” it must “present a sufficiently full and fair exposition of the pertinent facts as to permit an individual or the public to form an independent opinion or conclusion.” An organization will not be considered educational “if its principal function is the mere presentation of unsupported opinion.” Id. This alone casts doubt on the Foundation’s ability to be treated as a truly educational organization; the Revenue Procedure described below, though, makes it certain that it cannot.

Rev. Proc. 86-43 provides more detail about what is truly educational—and what is not. That Revenue Procedure begins by noting that the Service’s focus should be “not upon the viewpoint or position, but instead upon the method used by the organization to communicate its viewpoint or positions to others.” See Rev. Proc. 86-43, Section 2. Rev. Proc. 86-43 is attached hereto as Attachment 3.

That Rev. Proc. instructs the Service to consider four factors in determining whether an organization is truly educational. Any presence of any of these factors is indicative of the fact that the organization is not educational:

1. The presentation of viewpoints or positions unsupported by facts is a significant portion of the organization's communications;
2. The facts that purport to support the viewpoints or positions are distorted;
3. The organization's presentations make substantial use of inflammatory and disparaging terms and express conclusions more on the basis of strong emotional feelings than of objective evaluations; and
4. The approach used in the organization's presentations is not aimed at developing an understanding on the part of the intended audience or readership because it does not consider their background or training in the subject matter.

As shown in detail below, the Foundation runs afoul of each of these tests, and must necessarily be considered an “action organization” ineligible for treatment as an educational §501(c)(3) organization.

c. Specific Examples of Other Organizations Denied §501(c)(3) Exemption for Partisan Political Activities. An issue with respect to the ability of “action organizations” to become (and continue to be) exempt under §501(c)(3) has arisen a number of times, and both the courts and the IRS have repeatedly denied or revoked exemptions when an organization has come too close to the line of becoming partisan and political—and therefore well outside the scope of what can be considered educational. Following is a representative sample of these decisions:

- i. PLR 201142027. In this 2011 Private Letter Ruling, the IRS ruled that an organization that was formed “to inspire and train [politicians of a particular party] to run for public office” did not qualify as tax-exempt under §501(c)(4).³ The PLR went on to cite a number of cases, including one significant tax court case involving a Republican political organization that had previously been granted §501(c)(3) status: American Campaign Academy v. Commissioner, 92 T.C. 1053 (1989).

³ This is notable, as §501(c)(4) provides an exemption for social welfare organizations, which typically have more leeway than §501(c)(3)'s in being “action organizations.” The organization at issue in this PLR, however – which engaged in similar activities to the Foundation – could not even qualify for this more permissive exemption.

In American Campaign Academy, the organization at issue had close ties to the National Republican Congressional Committee (“NRCC”); and, while the organization claimed to be nonpartisan, the NRCC had contributed assets to the organization, one of the organization’s three initial directors was the Executive Director of the NRCC, and another was a member of the Republican National Committee—all concurrently with their Board service for American Campaign Academy. In considering whether the Academy could be considered exempt under §501(c)(3), the court noted that the organization routinely presented discussions on such topics as the “use of GOP allies” without “a counterbalance of comparable studies of other political parties.” See PLR 201142027 at 5, citing American Campaign Academy.

The court went on to note that while “applicants to the Academy were not required to formally declare their political affiliation to attend the organization’s school, the admission panel could deduce such affiliation from the campaign experiences and political references in the applications.” Id. The court noted that no graduate had ever been known to affiliate with a party other than the Republican Party, and a substantial percentage of the Academy’s admission panel was affiliated with the Republican Party.

For these reasons—and many others—the Academy’s request for a tax exemption under §501(c)(3) was denied, as “its educational activities were operated with a partisan purpose...[and] with the partisan objective of benefiting the interests of the Republican Party.” Id.; see also PLR 201332013 at 8.

Quite simply, “educational activities undertaken to provide a partisan benefit are considered to serve private interests, rather than the common good,” and cannot be considered tax-exempt activities. Id. at 6.

- ii. PLR 201340020. Like the PLR described above, PLR 201340020 dealt with the meaning of “educational” in the context of §501(c)(3). The organization at issue purported to “strengthen communities that are ill-served by existing media, specifically by broadening the informed electorate by publishing original journalism that provides civic education for the less-than affluent public...". PLR 201340020 at 2. The PLR goes on to note that the organization's stated purpose was "the education of these underserved communities through original reporting and carefully repurposed content published online, and made available to the public free of charge."

In supporting its decision to deny the organization §501(c)(3) status, the IRS noted that "a community being underserved by relational journalism is not comparable to a depressed community plagued by high unemployment, physical deterioration, or poverty," and a journalistic purpose alone is not enough to support a tax exemption as an "educational" organization or otherwise. Id. at 7-8. In short, a "journalistic" purpose—absent more—is an insufficient basis upon which to consider an organization "educational" within the meaning of §501(c)(3).

- iii. PLR 200602042. In this Private Letter Ruling, the IRS denied a §501(c)(3) exemption to yet another organization with a decidedly partisan mission. In that PLR, the organization seeking exemption achieved much of its fundraising by sending "fundraising letters...utilizing certain public figures...having high visibility or name recognition with the public." See PLR 200602042 at 2. The organization chose these public figures "primarily because their views on important topical issues coincide[d] with those [the organization] believe[d] were held by its supporters."

While the organization stated that the fundraising letters were released at random times "without timing them to a particular signatory's candidacy for public office," in many cases the signatory was an incumbent member of Congress facing reelection every two years. Id.

In fact, the organization sent letters from politicians known for their "positions on reducing the size and intrusiveness of government, reforming Congress, and family values." Id. No letters from politicians with other views were ever written or sent. Sample letters sent by the organization (as provided by the PLR) are attached here as Attachment 4. The IRS noted in particular that the letter was addressed "Dear Friend," and contained a number of partisan statements about government in general...but not about any particular candidate. The author's letter went on to praise the organization as a "beacon of free enterprise, limited government and a strong national defense on Capitol Hill.” Id. at 3. A number of similarly partisan letters are discussed in the PLR, all with the same basic focus and tone as the attached sample letter.

Using the factors described in Treas. Reg. §501(c)(3)-1(c)(3), the IRS went on to conclude that the organization was an “action” organization ineligible for exemption under §501(c)(3). While the letters were not necessarily even sent in close proximity to an election—and possibly did not even reference a candidate—the IRS still found that such activity constituted “participat[ion] or intervene[tion]...in [a] political campaign” prohibited by §501(c)(3). The Service noted that “an organization is not excused from acts of political campaign intervention because the organization had a ‘good’ purpose,” as such intervention “is not overcome by a ‘good’ purpose.” It went on to deny the requested exemption.

- iv. Rev. Rul. 67-71. In Rev. Rul. 67-71, the IRS ruled that an organization may be found to have participated or intervened in a political campaign even though it is the organization’s intention, in conducting such activities, to further its exempt purpose. It also held that an organization’s activity in evaluating the qualifications of all potential candidates—and then directly or impliedly supporting a particular slate of candidates—constitutes public participation in a political campaign. This was the case even though “the selection process may have been completely objective and unbiased and was intended primarily to educate and inform the public about the candidates.” See PLR 200602042, citing Rev. Rul. 67-71.
- v. PLR 201415007. In PLR 201415007, the IRS again denied a tax exemption to an “action” organization. Significantly, it concluded that “because [the organization was] operating to promote [its] view of social justice through encouraging individuals and organizations to mobilize in order to cause change,” it fell outside the scope of both §501(c)(3) and §501(c)(4). Because the organization’s “educational activities advocate for a specific position,” the IRS found that those activities “serve[d] to influence the public, rather than educating them.”

3. What are the Freedom Foundation’s Recent Activities?

As briefly mentioned above, concerns over the Foundation’s exempt status initially came to my clients’ attention after the Foundation violated their intellectual property rights to achieve the goal of requiring Democratic candidates for office—and only Democratic candidates—to return certain campaign contributions. Like many of the organizations described in the cases and private letter rulings analyzed above, the Foundation has consistently shown an extremely strong conservative bias; and, from its emotional attacks ranging from those on unions to Democratic politicians, it is clear that the Foundation is not providing the “bipartisan communications” it promised in its 1023.

a. Attack on Democratic Contributions and the Democratic Party.

As mentioned above, the Foundation’s political activity first came to my clients’ attention in 2012, when JZ Knight made a number of financial contributions to Democratic candidates for those candidates’ use in the 2012 election. The Foundation—which throughout a number of press releases and articles is described as a “libertarian” organization—attempted to embarrass these candidates to the extent that they would return these contributions (presumably to the financial detriment of their campaigns).

JZ Knight is not popular with the Freedom Foundation, and, due to her political and other beliefs, never has been. In order to both denigrate my client and, at the same time, accomplish its own goals of reducing Democratic candidates’ available funds, the Foundation pirated a number of my clients’ proprietary audiovisual materials,⁴ edited them to show what it characterized as incendiary remarks about certain minority groups, and subsequently distributed the pirated works to what Glen Morgan—an employee of the Foundation—has described as “3,200 public officials” and “everyone at senior staff level of every agency of Washington State.” When Mr. Morgan presented the materials at a meeting of the Thurston County Commissioners, he ended his speech by stating that “You can buy a party, you can buy politicians, but you cannot suppress the truth.” Given that the only political contributions made by my client were to Democratic party candidates, it is not difficult to deduce which party was allegedly “bought.”

The Foundation’s efforts to cause (only) Democrats to return valuable political contributions, though, did not stop there—and, unfortunately, the Foundation’s next steps involved a large-scale attack against both Democratic politicians and the Democratic party as a whole. Next came a series of incendiary blog posts on the Freedom Foundation’s website, which are attached hereto as Attachment 5. Following is a representative sample of comments made throughout the articles:

- May 8, 2014. After referencing Ms. Knight’s political contributions to Democratic candidates a number of times, the post states that “organizations like JZ Knight can clearly buy significant influence within a political party.” It subsequently links to articles entitled “JZ Knight buys the Thurston County Democrat Party,” and “State Republican

⁴ This is at issue in the litigation referenced above, and will not be discussed further here.

Chair Demands Democrats Give Money Back.” Again not surprisingly, there is no corresponding reference to any conservative or other candidates or issues.

- May 20, 2014. Like the other posts, this one focus on Democratic candidates for office, and states that “the issue is [Democratic] politicians accepting support from a bigot and then both [the donor and the Party] lying about it.”
- May 23, 2014. This post features a quote from the Foundation’s attorney stating that “the Freedom Foundation is a nonpartisan organization, [and] had a Republican taken money from someone who said what JZ Knight did, it would call on them to explain it, too.” Interestingly, however, the Foundation is consistently known as a having strong libertarian and conservative ties, and in addition to only having ever provided financial contributions to conservative causes (discussed below), its website features such events as “[staff member] Scott Roberts Speaking at Island County Republican Party Rally” and “[staff member] Jami Lund is Speaking at Libertarian Party’s Day at the Capitol.” Notably, no references are made to speaking engagement at which representatives from multiple parties would be present, nor is any reference made to staff members’ speaking engagements at Democratic party events. A representative sample of staff members’ reported speaking engagements appear on Attachment 6. Not surprisingly, all of the speaking engagements relate to Republican and Libertarian organizations; no speaking engagements appear with respect to either left-leaning or even nonpartisan groups.
- August 4, 2014. This post is an open letter to Ted Nugent, whose event at a local venue was cancelled after its management learned that Mr. Nugent habitually referred to President Obama as a “subhuman mongrel.”The letter—which was penned by the Freedom Foundation’s CEO, Tom McCabe—opens by stating that “as one of the nation’s most forthright defenders of individual liberty, you no doubt appreciate better than anyone the irony of the Left’s mock outrage over your recent comments about President Obama.”

Interestingly, while the Foundation is willing to refer to the “Left’s mock outrage,” it ignores its own (mock) “outrage” over a non-public figure’s comments that it characterized as “sheer, unadorned racism,” and “profanity-laced tirades.” When a conservative (here, Ted Nugent) makes racist, disrespectful comments—against our President, no less—that conduct is applauded and rewarded with an invitation to its “NW Freedom Shootout.” The Freedom Foundation cannot explain its persecution of liberals for (allegedly) similar conduct as anything other than the “mock outrage” it criticizes in its August 4 post. Apparently allegedly racist comments are acceptable coming from conservatives, but are absolutely appalling and unacceptable coming from liberals.

A screen shot from the Foundation's website on August 4 is also included in Attachment 5. The main headline (which appears below a reference to the Foundation's Ted Nugent Letter) reads as follows: "Question: Just How Insane, Racist, and Corrupt Do You Have To Be Before Obama Returns Your Campaign Donations?" The article proceeds to describe "Democrats [who] had to be dragged kicking and screaming" to agree not to take certain campaign donations. The Foundation presented no similar reports with respect to conservative politicians.

- August 5, 2014. This post begins with a reference to the novel 1984, describing a "daily ritual wherein the party of the ruling government mandates a daily 'two minutes of hate' directed at external 'enemies.'" It goes on to state that "here and now, the Thurston County Democrat Party's equivalent two minutes of hate can be found in its monthly newsletter—usually the editorials written by local political leadership." Notably, the article calls for no conversation or public debate, and no reference is made (or criticism directed to) any conservative groups.

Mr. Morgan—the author of the post—states that "it isn't clear why the Thurston County Democratic Party is so filled with hatred and anger," and refers to the party's "tak[ing] time out of their busy schedule of social engineering and central planning to lob hate bombs at the Freedom Foundation."

The post, unfortunately, becomes more vitriolic as it continues, as Mr. Morgan refers to a "mutual admiration society that has been lucrative for the Thurston County Democrats and has allowed them to use dirty money to fuel their own hate."

But the Foundation has not limited itself to expressing its partisan political views on its website. Quotes from its leaders have appeared in a number of other publications, including the Olympian and the Tacoma News Tribune (two local news outlets). Copies of three such articles are attached hereto as Attachment 7. Statements from the Freedom Foundation in these articles include the following:

- April 30, 2014—The Olympian. In this article, a local news outlet describes that Freedom Foundation as both a "right-of-center think tank" and a "libertarian-styled think tank" that posted the above-described videos in an effort to convince Democratic Senate candidates "to give the money back."
- August 2, 2014—The News Tribune. In this letter published in the News Tribune, my client defended herself against attacks made by the Freedom Foundation (and in the course of the article, cited a number of the Foundation's activities that show its sharply partisan nature). Freedom Foundation staff took to making derogatory online comments to again show the Foundation's libertarian, far-from-bipartisan stance.

- August 17, 2014—The News Tribune. In this article, the Freedom Foundation's Managing Editor, Jeff Rhodes, states that the Foundation's is "compelled" to expose the Democratic Party's "double standard." While he states that the Foundation would "do the same if local Republicans" were accepting similar donations, the Foundations track record (or lack thereof) on that issue is telling.

b. Attacks on Democratic Politicians and "Liberal" Causes.

The Foundation's partisan advocacy and election intervention, unfortunately, also does not end with the facts described above. Following is a description of two additional examples of the Foundation's unabashed practice of intervening in partisan political causes and campaigns. The articles referenced below are attached hereto as Attachment 8, and were linked to the Foundation's website. No links to nonpartisan or left-leaning publications were present on the website, nor was there any call for discourse or debate on these matters.

- September 16, 2014. Washington State's governor is Jay Inslee: a Democrat. In an article entitled "Inslee Conspiring With Union to Get Around Law," the author states that "Inslee has decided to take the law into his own hands" by "communicating and coordinating extensively with organized labor with the intention of bypassing" a U.S. Supreme Court decision. It concludes by saying that "evidently an oath to follow the law doesn't override Inslee's desire to help out his campaign donors." Not surprisingly, there is no discussion of other viewpoints with respect to the law at issue.
- September 19, 2014. In an article entitled "Inslee Ignores Red Ink, Gives $$$ to Campaign Donors," the author writes that the governor "ignored" the "budget reality" because it was "time to reward his million-dollar campaign donors like SEIU 775 and the Washington Federation of State Employees." The article ends by posing a biased rhetorical question: "So, if Inslee comes out for a tax increase later this year, and says it's 'for the children,' you might ask first how much of those higher taxes are really going to his big campaign donors?"

c. Contribution Reports.

Interestingly, Glen Morgan—an employee of the Freedom Foundation—appears in a Freedom Foundation video posted to its website on May 8, 2014. That video purports to encourage "transparency" in elections—but while he applies this rule of "transparency" to the detriment of Democratic candidates, he apparently has not paid attention to what Washington State's transparent election system says about the Foundation.

The Washington State Public Disclosure Commission (the "PDC") requires both candidates for office and political committees to not only register with the PDC, but also to disclose its donors and the ways in which money is spent. Upon searching recent PDC records for the Foundation as a recipient of political funds, it is clear that the only candidates and organizations to which the Foundation is financially tied are conservative in nature. Following is a representative sample of disclosure statements on which the Foundation is listed as a recipient of funds:

- Yakima County Republican Central Committee
- Kittitas County Republican Party
- Kitsap County Republican Party
- Mason County Republicans
- Klickitat County Republican Central Committee
- Grant County Republican Central Committee
- 32nd District Republicans
- Property Fairness Coalition (a conservative organization)
- John Clark (a Republican candidate)
- Lois McMahan (a Republican candidate)
- Timothy Matthes (a Republican candidate)
- Linda Darnell (a Republican candidate)
- Robert McKenna (a Republican candidate)
- Joel Kretz (a Republican Candidate)
- Matthew Swindell (a Republican candidate)
- Joyce Mulliken (a Republican candidate)
- John Groen (a conservative judicial candidate)
- David Taylor (a Republican candidate)
- Matthew Shea (a Republican candidate)

Each of the records described above—and many others—describe various types and amounts of payments to the Freedom Foundation. Many of the payments to the Foundation are characterized as payments for a speaking engagement, "Campaign Luncheon," "Candidate Briefing," or "travel accommodations and meals"—meaning that the Foundation is not only functionally working on a candidate's campaign, but also deriving a financial benefit from it. Each of the above-referenced PDC disclosures appears on Attachment 9. Notably, no Democratic or other liberal-leaning politicians have been paying the Freedom Foundation for its services, nor has the Freedom Foundation expressed any interest in participating in any bipartisan activities.

4. Why Does It Matter, and What Can Be Done?

Based on its activities, the Freedom Foundation's partisan political activity easily renders it an "action organization," and the four factors used in Rev. Proc. 86-43's definition of what is educational and what is not all weigh in favor of a finding that the Foundation is anything but educational. Between shaming Democratic politicians into turning away valuable campaign donations to presenting distorted viewpoints of the Democratic party as one that can be "bought" and lobs "hate bombs" because it is filled with "hatred and anger," the Foundation appears to have little time to carry out the "regular and bipartisan communication" it promised in its 1023.

Rather than providing a bipartisan analysis of pending legislation or even legislators' respective views on assorted issues of interest to the public, the Foundation has instead chosen to use emotional language designed not to spark a thoughtful response not from the public, but to get a reaction from its "opponents." And they have succeeded in that: by the time they have referred to the Democratic party (and various candidates within it) as one that uses "dirty money to fuel their own hate," they have not only caused many in the political system to react, but have also become well known as a conservative advocacy organization that will make its conservative views known – regardless of whether its conduct is legal or not.

The Foundation's abuse of its exempt status has not only affected the Washington residents against whom their attacks have been directed, but is also a detriment to taxpayers as a whole. The U.S. Supreme Court has addressed this exact issue with a similar organization, concluding:

Both tax exemptions and tax-deductibility are a form of subsidy that is administered through the tax system. A tax exemption has much the same effect as a cash grant to the organization of the amount of tax it would have to pay on its income. Deductible contributions are similar to cash grants of the amount of a portion of the individual's contributions.

Regan v. Taxation With Representation of Washington, 461 U.S. 540,544 (1997). The Court went on to state in no uncertain terms that "Congress chose not to subsidize" lobbying and political activities as it did organizations working for truly charitable and educational purposes." Id.

The IRS conducted a study on the issue of §501(c)(3) organizations' political involvement in 2010 and 2011. It reported that unlawful conduct like the Foundation's is (unfortunately) rampant, and reported that "in nearly three quarters of the cases reviewed, improper political intervention by section 501(c)(3) organizations was substantiated." That report is attached hereto as Attachment 10.

Form 13909 Supplement
Freedom Foundation
EIN 94-3136961

In cases ranging from the Private Letter Rulings discussed above to American Campaign Academy v. Commissioner, 92 T.C. 1053 (1989), the IRS has uniformly denied organizations the benefit of a tax exemption where their activities were far from educational—and instead came into the realm of partisan political rhetoric meant to divide communities along party lines, not promote bipartisan communications.

My clients are submitting the enclosed Form 13909 in order to request an examination into the Foundation's activities—especially during this election season. They have no financial or other interest in the disposition of the case, but desire to expose the Foundation's activities as being inappropriate as recipients of a functional government subsidy. We believe there is ample evidence that the Foundation has been acting improperly, and, based on binding precedent, should not be allowed to continue to abuse its §501(c)(3) status.

It was unanimously agreed upon to ask Lynn Schow to serve as permanent Board secretary.

We began by reviewing the Foundation's purpose. It was decided that a little tightening up and clarifying was in order. Bob Cihak seconded the motion and it was carried.

The Board then reviewed the procedures and legal requirements section of our organizational documents. Harry James made the motion that the document of organization be accepted as written. It was seconded by Bob Cihak and the motion carried.

Harry James made a recommendation that at the next full board meeting an Executive Board would be established. A discussion followed in which Andy said this board would deal with the day-to-day operating needs. Harry's motion was seconded by Bob Cihak and subsequently passed.

Harry then moved we accept the By-Laws as written. Bob Cihak seconded. The motion carried.

Harry also make a motion to accept the prepared budget and to use Security Pacific as our treasurer's bank of preference. But the motion was seconded by Bob Cihak and passed.

Andy asked that the Treasurer be the sole signator and submit invoices to the Board Chairman for review. Bill seconded the motion. It passed.

Andy discussed the use of contracting to consultants for the majority of projects completed by E.F.F. Basic compensation was discussed and it was agreed that Bob Williams would be authorized

PURPOSES AND PROPOSED ACTIVITIES

The Evergreen Freedom Foundation is a non-profit, tax-exempt corporation dedicated to research, educating the general public and advocating private sector involvement in the fundamental tasks and principles which, when woven together, form the basic fabric of our society. We seek to uphold and strengthen the fundamental principles of individual liberty, traditional American values and institutions, productive free enterprise, private property rights, responsible and limited government, fair and accountable taxation. This will be accomplished through Conferences, symposiums, public forums, task forces and published documents.

The Freedom Foundation is committed to promoting limited, accountable, representative government by pursuing a working partnership between government and the private sector in these four foundational areas:

- economic opportunity for all people through our free enterprise system.
- strengthening and supporting the American family.
- common-sense land use, environmental and natural resource management.
- responsible federal & state tax and budget policies.

To accomplish our educational tasks, we will use the combined resources of our Foundation Board, principal officers, consultants, community leaders and experts in particular fields.

In addition to keeping all state & federal laws relating to a 501(c)(3) organization our programs and proposals must also meet four internal standards.

First, each proposal or program must meet both the Constitutional test and basic ethical standards of the community-at-large. Second, all proposals or programs must be easily understood. Third, they must be structured for efficient dissemination or implementation. Fourth, all possible private sector solutions or ideas must be explored as the area of first resort.

DETAILS OF PROPOSED ACTIVITIES

Advancing economic opportunity for all people through our free enterprise system.

The Evergreen Freedom Foundation realizes that permanent solutions to many of the critical issues facing us rest on the back of a healthy growing economy. America's largest employer --- small business --- is particularly stressed and beleaguered by a changing workforce, increased expectations and ever growing government involvement.

The Evergreen Freedom Foundation will analyze current state government policies which are detrimental to small business and will propose alternatives which nourish entrepreneurism, creativity and long term, stable growth. We will advance innovative ideas dealing with the emerging issues of daycare, health care, insurance and family leave.

EVERGREEN FREEDOM FOUNDATION
P.O. Box 552, Olympia, WA 98507

JANUARY 4, 1991

We will accomplish these tasks by doing the following:

- Conferencing with small business organizations and developing a survey instrument to assess their members' greatest needs concerning daycare, healthcare, insurance, family leave, government regulations and tax structure.
- Formulating Small Business Task Forces to research the methods other states are successfully or unsuccessfully using to address similar concerns.
- Proposals will be drafted and promoted through public forums, Chamber meetings, Legislative Conferences, business leadership meetings and through published documents.

Strengthening and Supporting the American Family.

The Evergreen Freedom Foundation believes that a strong family is the best social program available. Yet, the American family is fracturing under severe stress. We will do the following:

- Study, review and propose alternatives or solutions in the area of health care availability and rising costs for the "working poor" and single parent head-of-household families.
- The Freedom Foundation will also work with the private sector and government on housing solutions for the homeless and "working poor" families.
- Research and publish studies and hold public forums.
- Work with community and industry leaders to implement some of our housing and healthcare proposals.

Common Sense Land Use, Environmental and Natural Resource Management

Recognizing the need to balance good stewardship of this planet we call "home", with growing economic needs and private property rights, the Evergreen Freedom Foundation will do the following:

- Develop common sense, private sector solutions to wildlife and stream management, waste disposal and zoning laws.
- Analyze current local and state laws and programs, suggesting streamlining and simplifying where possible.
- Seek to educate communities and their leaders through forums and community meetings.
- Develop private citizen "Resource Management Teams"
- Pursue solid waste disposal and recycling opportunities.
- Provide creative, cost effective, community oriented resource and waste management plans.

Developing Responsible Federal & State Tax & Budget Policies

Two of the greatest burdens on business and the American family are irresponsible budgeting and increasing taxes. The Evergreen Freedom Foundation will do the following:

- Analyze state & federal budget and tax proposals.
- Issue detailed reports on their impact to business and families.
- Publish ideas for saving money and streamlining processes.
- Seek to involve private sector and community leaders in the implementation of these ideas.

Dear Friend,

I write this important letter at a time of grave international uncertainty. All of us feel anxiety as we view the unfolding and agonizing events in the Middle East. We are impacted in a variety of ways but those with loved ones serving in our Armed Forces feel that churning-in-the-stomach sensation more than anyone else. My heart goes out to you.

It is hard to think of anything else right now but we must. It is during tumultuous times like this, when attention is turned to crisis overseas, that unsteady hands begin manipulating the course set here at home. In the midst of national stress, good people often become paralyzed with uncertainty. It's a natural feeling. And believe me, many special interest groups are betting on our paralysis now.

With that in mind, I want to share the beginning of fulfillment of a dream . . . a dream developed around my desk more than two years ago.

A small group of us had gathered to talk about Washington's future. Each of us listed the three or four things we felt were necessary to create a positive, healthy climate for business and families in Washington state.

At that gathering two years ago, we decided to begin a non-profit, tax-exempt Foundation. The Foundation would strictly work on policy analysis and issue development. But circumstances, limited finances, staff, and time made development of a Foundation impossible at that time.

Since then, several things have happened. As you know, I have been involved in an extensive campaign and have had the opportunity to meet with dozens and dozens of elected officials, community leaders and thousands of individuals. Critical decisions are facing us.

Stop for a moment and think about this decade and the issues that are facing us. There are answers!

We know the difference between guilt and compassion; the difference between long range common sense and short range reactions . . . we must become aggressive and proactive with our own limited, common sense agenda.

The Conference price varies according to location but will average $100.00 per person. Our goal is to hold 4 Keystone education seminars, training 200 business leaders at an average cost of $100.00 each of a total of $20.000 income per year.

Dear Friend,

I write this important letter at a time of grave international uncertainty. All of us feel anxiety as we view the unfolding and agonizing events in the Middle East. We are impacted in a variety of ways but those with loved ones serving in our Armed Forces feel that churning-in-the-stomach sensation more than anyone else. My heart goes out to you.

It is hard to think of anything else right now but we must. It is during tumultuous times like this, when attention is turned to crisis overseas, that unsteady hands begin manipulating the course set here at home. In the midst of national stress, good people often become paralyzed with uncertainty. It's a natural feeling. And believe me, many special interest groups are betting on our paralysis now.

With that in mind, I want to share the beginning of fulfillment of a dream . . . a dream developed around my desk more than two years ago.

A small group of us had gathered to talk about Washington's future. Each of us listed the three or four things we felt were necessary to create a positive, healthy climate for business and families in Washington state.

At that gathering two years ago, we decided to begin a non-profit, tax-exempt Foundation. The Foundation would strictly work on policy analysis and issue development. But circumstances, limited finances, staff, and time made development of a Foundation impossible at that time.

Since then, several things have happened. As you know, I have been involved in an extensive campaign and have had the opportunity to meet with dozens and dozens of elected officials, community leaders and thousands of individuals. Critical decisions are facing us.

Stop for a moment and think about this decade and the issues that are facing us. We will have to deal with serious environmental concerns, property limitations, a changing educational structure, increased employee demands upon business, and growing social burdens stemming from fractured families. What will we do about these concerns?

There are answers!

We know the difference between guilt and compassion; the difference between long range common sense and short range reactions . . . we must become aggressive and proactive with our own limited, common sense agenda.

Well, that's a long way to tell you that we have finally developed the plans for a tax-exempt, non-profit foundation called the Evergreen Freedom Foundation. If you are familiar with the Heritage Foundation, you have an idea of how we will pattern ourselves.

Rev. Proc. 86-43, 1986-2 C.B. 729, 1986 WL 297205 (IRS RPR)

Internal Revenue Service (I.R.S.)

Revenue Procedure

Published: 1986

26 CFR 601.201: Rulings and determination letters.

(Also Part I, Section 501; 1.501(c)(3)-1.)

SECTION 1. PURPOSE

The purpose of this revenue procedure is to publish the criteria used by the Internal Revenue Service to determine the circumstances under which advocacy of a particular viewpoint or position by an organization is considered educational within the meaning of section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, and within the meaning of section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(3) of the Income Tax Regulations.

SEC. 2. BACKGROUND

.01 Section 501(c)(3) of the Code provides for exemption from federal income tax for organizations that are organized and operated exclusively for purposes specified in that section, including educational purposes. Section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(3) of the regulations provides that the term 'educational' relates to a) the instruction or training of the individual for the purpose of improving or developing his capabilities; or b) the instruction of the public on subjects useful to the individual and beneficial to the community. Under this regulation, an organization may be educational even though it advocates a particular position or viewpoint, so long as it presents a sufficiently full and fair exposition of the pertinent facts as to permit an individual or the public to form an independent opinion or conclusion. On the other hand, an organization is not educational if its principal function is the mere presentation of unsupported opinion.

.02 In applying section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(3) of the regulations, the Service has attempted to eliminate or minimize the potential for any public official to impose his or her preconceptions or beliefs in determining whether the particular viewpoint or position is educational. It has been, and it remains, the policy of the Service to maintain a position of disinterested neutrality with respect to the beliefs advocated by an organization. The focus of section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(3), and of the Service's application of this regulation, is not upon the viewpoint or position, but instead upon the method used by the organization to communicate its viewpoint or positions to others.

.03 Two recent court decisions have considered challenges to the constitutionality of section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(3) of the regulations. One decision held that the regulation was unconstitutionally vague. Big Mama Rag, Inc. v. United States, 631 F. 2d 1030 (D.C. Cir. 1980). However, in National Alliance v. United States, 710 F. 2d 868 (D.C. Cir. 1983), the court upheld the Service's position that the organization in question was not educational. Although the latter decision did not reach the question of the constitutionality of section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(3), it did note that the methodology test used by the Service when applying the regulation 'tend[s] toward ensuring that the educational exemption be restricted to material which substantially helps a reader or listener in a learning process.' The court also noted that the application of this test reduced the vagueness found in the earlier Big Mama Rag decision.

.04 The methodology test cited by the court in National Alliance reflects the long-standing Service position that the method used by an organization in advocating its position, rather than the position itself, is the standard for determining whether an organization has educational purposes. This methodology test is set forth in Section 3 of this revenue procedure, and is used in all situations where the educational purposes of an organization that advocates a particular viewpoint or position are in question. Publication of this test represents no change either to existing procedures or to the substantive position of the Service.

SEC. 3. CRITERIA USED TO DETERMINE WHETHER ADVOCACY BY AN ORGANIZATION IS EDUCATIONAL

.01 The Service recognizes that the advocacy of particular viewpoints or positions may serve an educational purpose even if the viewpoints or positions being advocated are unpopular or are not generally accepted.

.02 Although the Service renders no judgment as to the viewpoint or position of the organization, the Service will look to the method used by the organization to develop and present its views. The method used by the organization will not be considered educational if it fails to provide a factual foundation for the viewpoint or position being advocated, or if it fails to provide a development from the relevant facts that would materially aid a listener or reader in a learning process.

.03 The presence of any of the following factors in the presentations made by an organization is indicative that the method used by the organization to advocate its viewpoints or positions is not educational.

1 The presentation of viewpoints or positions unsupported by facts is a significant portion of the organization's communications.

2 The facts that purport to support the viewpoints or positions are distorted.

3 The organization's presentations make substantial use of inflammatory and disparaging terms and express conclusions more on the basis of strong emotional feelings than of objective evaluations.

4 The approach used in the organization's presentations is not aimed at developing an understanding on the part of the intended audience or readership because it does not consider their background or training in the subject matter.

.04 There may be exceptional circumstances, however, where an organization's advocacy may be educational even if one of more of the factors listed in section 3.03 are present. The Service will look to all the facts and circumstances to determine whether an organization may be considered educational despite the presence of one or more of such factors.

SEC. 4. OTHER REQUIREMENTS

Even if the advocacy undertaken by an organization is determined to be educational under the above criteria, the organization must still meet all other requirements for exemption under section 501(c)(3), including the restrictions on influencing legislation and political campaigning contained therein.

Rev. Proc. 86-43, 1986-2 C.B. 729, 1986 WL 297205 (IRS RPR)

END OF DOCUMENT

ATTACHMENT 4

For purposes of this ruling, T has provided specific information as to two proposed fund raising letters by two different signatories with differently worded letters.

One letter is signed by Senator A. Senator A is known for his positions on reducing the size and intrusiveness of government, reforming Congress, and family values.

Senator A's views on reform of Congress coincide with the views of T. Senator A's impact as a fund raising signatory on this issue is based on his well known efforts while in Congress, in support of term limits, and his work on campaign reform. T has not determined whether the letters will be released as prospecting or housefile mailings. In either event, approximately 250,000 letters will be released at several different times in the future.

T has provided a sample copy of the fund raising letter signed by Senator A. The letter has Senator A's name at the top centered and in capitalized large print. Underneath the name is written "United States Senate" centered and with margins separating this writing from the name above and the text that follows. Several lines after this writing appears the sentence "Would you give up a $133,600 a year job, a million dollar pension and great travel perks?" written in bold. This sentence is also centered. The letter is then addressed "Dear Friend." The text of the letter reads as follows:

Most people would not. And this is the problem conservatives face in reforming our legislature and hammering away at "politics as usual" in Washington.

When more than 250 members of Congress and 100 Senators can become "pension millionaires" by staying in office, what incentive do they leave? With guaranteed pay raises that don't require votes, what incentive do they have to reform?

With high pay, great benefits and generous perks, the pot has grown quite sweet for Members of Congress and Senators over the years and is breeding millionaires. It's no wonder the liberals want to protect the status quo.

I did not come to Washington in (date) to benefit from this system. In fact, I am working with a broad group of conservatives to keep working for a Congress run by citizens interested in serving you. Along with our leadership, we have won some battles already, but there is still much left undone.

I believe Term Limits would fix the problem of careerism. But until we can vote them into law, conservatives must take other paths to reform our legislature. That's why I am working to get rid of five Congressional perks that are costing taxpayers tens of millions per year. Cutting these perks tells those in power that you are tired of politics by "sound bite," and that you are serious about government of, by, and for the people.

Our team has made progress since taking power and there are many in Washington who agree with us. A leader among them is a long time voice for reforming our legislature - T (name spelled out) - and I am working closely with them to create a legislature that spends more time listening and less time spending.

The following is a list of five Congressional perks that we want to cut in order to end the career mentality in our legislature and return our country to moral and economic prosperity. These five recommendations are giant steps in reforming Congress and the Senate and preserving the original version of the Founding Fathers:

1. Members of Congress and the Senate should not have their retirement paid for by taxpayers. Let them save their own dollars for retirement.
2. No more pay raises for Congress and the Senate without voting on them.
3. Eliminate "Franking" of mass mailings. This "free" mail is paid for with tax dollars and is an unfair campaign advantage for incumbents.
4. Require Members of the House to return millions of dollars in frequent flier benefits to the government just as the Senate and Executive Branch do.

5. Stop the use of special travel on military aircraft unless no commercial options are available.

Now that you know the steps I want to take, I want to tell you about T and why I am counting on them to help reform our legislature.

For almost 30 years now, T has been the beacon of free enterprise, limited government and a strong national defense on Capitol Hill. Their experts do the hard work looking at our huge government, breaking down what it really does, what its costs and creating real world solutions. Their work is respected and quoted widely by both conservatives and liberals in the government and media.

I have been a fan of T for years, but it was during my first campaign for Congress that I came face-to-face with how effective their work is.

I relied quite often on a book they had sent me called (name deleted). Which as since been updated each year. It helped me educate the public about conservative ideas and give them hard facts on nearly every issue - from tax relief, welfare reform, education reform, to crime and punishment issues.

After winning my race, I attended an orientation session run by T. It was so well attended, that (an educational institution) canceled a competing seminar they've been running for the last three decades!

At that conference, countless experts and guest speakers, including (names deleted)- gave valuable insights on how to curb Washington's appetite for your dollars.

Help that again proved invaluable to me and my fellow conservatives as our leadership led to a 100-day blitz to take back our government. During that time, we made a real start in cleaning up our legislature by voting on Term Limits, enacting term limits for key positions, and cutting the operating budget.

Now it is time to push forward with the next phase of reform. The five reforms outlined on your fact sheet are achievable steps toward ending the career mentality plaguing our legislature and crippling its ability to lead.

If you want a better legislature, you can help today by sending a tax deductible check of $20, $50, or $75 membership in T to help fund the nationwide education campaign to reform our government.

Our goal is to permanently change how Washington does business. We've had some successes, but now is the time to keep pressing forward for reforms that give all us more opportunity and personal freedoms.

And when I leave the Senate, I know T will still be guarding your freedoms against those who would like to take them away.

So please help today. Your tax-deductible check is the most effective ammunition in the battle to reign in our legislature and keep making it more responsive to your vision of America.

Serving you,

A (name spelled out)

United States Senate

P.S. Million dollar pensions and pay raises without voting create career politicians. To give you safer streets, better schools, newer jobs and a brighter future, conservatives on Capitol Hill must keep cleaning house. The next step is eliminating five specific perks that are described in this letter.

Attached to the letter is T's "Reply Memorandum" which provides a form in which the recipient of the fund raising letter may respond by checking the box as to his or her amount of payment to T and also indicating the means of payment. Also on this page is a box providing a two question survey conducted by T.

A second letter on which T has requested a ruling is proposed fund raising letter for signature by Congressman B, who is presumed to be a candidate for the United States House of Representatives. It is assumed that 250,000 of the letters will be released over a specified period including dates prior to the election.

Congressman B espouses conservative values with respect to moral reform. For purposes of this ruling, it is assumed that his views as expressed in the fund raising letter also generally coincide with those of T.

The B letter is on T's letterhead, which is typed in large print and centered at the top of the page. A few lines following the letterhead, in bold print and aligned with the left margin is B's name. Underneath the name, also in bold, is "Member of Congress." The text of the letter reads as follows:

Dear fellow Americans:

When I was growing up in (location deleted) everyone believed in family, church and community. My parents taught me to work hard, play fair, make responsible choices, and even when you don't, when you buy your bed, you sleep in it.

Nowadays, the rules seem to have changed. Now it's work as little as possible, get someone else to take responsibility and get the government to pay your way.

And look at the results.

Illegitimacy has become an epidemic, with disastrous consequences for society, and for the children who have to grow up without a father.

Drugs and alcohol are ravaging families and communities. Crime holds citizens in fear. People rely on the government instead of themselves, parents abdicate responsibility for their children, and schools produce kids who know all about condoms and self-esteem but can hardly read. Popular culture gives us violent films and degrading music.

It's obvious that America is on the wrong track. And we're out of time to set it right again.

I'd like to know what you think about how America got off the track and what we can do about it. And so would T, America's leading conservative think tank.

That's why we are asking you to fill out the enclosed national survey, (title deleted).

The Survey is part of a significant project I'm involved with in T, called s.

We are relying on the support of people like you.

Restoring America is not a one-shot easy task. People's hearts and souls need to change. Decades of decline have to be reversed.

But we've got to make a start. And where T and I want to start is by fighting the destructive ways that big government keep us from solving our problems.

We Americans are an amazing people. We created a political system based on liberty. We abolished slavery and segregation. We've built a country with more freedom and opportunity than any nation in history, where thousands of dreams come true every day.

So I know that we can solve our current problems if we have the opportunity.

But big government stands directly in our way. Government programs created many of our social problems in the first place by making millions of people dependent, robbing them of their self-reliance, and penalizing them for getting married and for getting married and forming families.

And now that we are in this terrible mess, big government acts as a barrier to solving our problems.

For example, our taxes are so high that millions of women have been forced into the workplace just to pay the family tax bill. Many of these women would rather be home raising their children and we'd all be better off with more children brought up in their own families.

But big government needs those high taxes to support its monstrous appetite.

Another example: We know that practicing a faith is the number one way to lift the poor out of poverty, create stable families, decrease crime, and even improve health. Faith-based schools have already saved many children who attend them, and could save many more if given a chance.

Through misguided Supreme Court decisions and rigid bureaucratic attitudes, nothing connected with government can be “contaminated” by religion.

Government schools can't teach moral values, government-funded charities can't use religion as a way to help alcoholics or drug addicts, sex education programs can't give teenagers a faith-based viewpoint.

These examples are just the tip of the iceberg. That's why it's so clear to me, until we get big government out of the way, we'll never get America on the right track.

I'm working with T on their s because they work so effectively to fight government intrusiveness and promote private solutions to our problems.

For example, thanks to T we know the facts about the incredible benefits of practicing religion. Their report on the subject (name deleted) was cited in literally hundreds of articles, interviews, and commentaries.

The report showed, for example, that church attendance is the most important predictor of marital stability and happiness practicing a faith drastically lowers the incidence of suicide, drug-abuse, out-of-wedlock births, crime and divorce.

T also publicizes the ways people are finding to restore morality and good citizenship in its magazine (name deleted). I've personally been inspired by stories about places such as (name deleted), a Bible-based program that successfully challenges addicted women to change, and (name deleted) which tutors inner-city children while giving them faith-based character

These stories show the power of deep moral beliefs to change lives. They are a direct challenge to the big-government secular outlook of the media and liberals in Congress and the Senate.

In addition, T is directly tackling the government interference that helps keep America on the wrong track. They're

- Fighting for fundamental tax reform that will lower your tax rates and give child tax credits - two steps that will enable many mothers to stay at home.
- Fighting to allow poor children to choose to attend faith-based schools with opportunity scholarships.
- Fighting to cut the size and scope of the federal government, so it won't be able to poke its nose into every nook and cranny of our lives.
- Fighting to allow taxpayers to direct some of their taxes to the private charities of their choice.
- Fighting to end discrimination against the faith-based programs, lift obstacles to adoption, and a host of other measures that will give the American people the power to solve our problems.

But liberals and liberal organizations like the National Education Association and the ACLU can't stand the idea that private, faith-based action is the answer to our problems, rather than the government imposed solutions so dear to their hearts.

So these liberals will fight our proposals to the bitter end, no matter how many innocent children and poor people are hurt.

Which side do you stand on? Are you for the conservatives restoring America by getting government off our backs, and allowing us to turn to our solutions, including faith-based answers?

Or do you want more of the liberals' secular, government dominated system that has brought us to our present state of moral decline?

T and I need you to take a stand with us, by taking these two actions:

First, fill out the enclosed survey: (name deleted).

And second, when you return your survey, please enclose a contribution to help T with its s.

T's president, xxx, tells me they will need $(dollar amount) for s in the next 90 days.

T is a private organization that receives no government funds. It relies on voluntary contributions from people like you to carry out its programs.

I urge you to give $25, $35, or $50 to this all important project.

If you are in a position to give more - - $100, $200, or even $500, I pray you will do this.

I know from having worked with T over the last several years that this organization is extraordinarily effective. I would not ask you to send your hard earned money if I didn't believe T would spend it wisely.

My friend, when I was a kid, we relied on family, church, and community, not the government. If we are successful in renewing America, we can see those days again.

Sincerely

B (name spelled out)

Member of Congress

P.S. Our moral and cultural decline is proceeding so rapidly that if we do not reverse it in the next two years I fear America will never get back on track. T's s is turning us in the right direction by showing that private action based on morality, not government is the answer - and working to remove government barriers to moral renewal we need.

I urge you to support s to the best of your ability with your survey and your contribution.

As to both fundraising letters, T has represented that it will not mail the fundraising letters into the jurisdiction where the signer is or may become a candidate for office. Thus the fundraising letters with A's signature will not be sent to recipients residing in the state where A is a candidate for the Senate. Further, the fundraising letters with B's signature will not be sent to recipients residing in the congressional district where B is a candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives. For purposes of this ruling it is assumed that both A and B are candidates for office.

JZ Knight Tirade Videos Submitted to Politicians She Supports

May 8, 2014 Glen Morgan Grassroots Director

However bizarre the facts, Freedom Foundation believes in transparency and accountability for public officials, even when a 35,000 year old warrior would prefer to keep it secret.

JZ Knight, a local curiosity in Yelm, Wash., recently became the single largest donor to the Democrat Party in Thurston County. Her recent donation of $65,000 is notable because just 18 months ago, Washington State Democrats and a variety of local Democrat candidates rejected contributions from Knight.

Knight, who has built a multi-million dollar business around her claim to channel a 35,000-year-old warrior named “Ramtha,” gave generously in 2012 to liberal candidates at the national, state, and local levels. When disenchanted former members of the “Ramtha School of Enlightenment” (RSE) released videos showing Knight in profanity-laced tirades against Mexicans, Catholics, and other minorities, most candidates and the Washington State Democrats publicly disavowed Knight and gave her money away to charities.

Freedom Foundation became involved in the story through work on behalf of local business and property owners. Many locals believe Knight’s political cash and connections have protected RSE from the same level of regulatory scrutiny faced by other businesses and property owners in Thurston County. Because of Knight’s close connection with policymakers, Freedom Foundation believed the videos of her tirades were relevant to the public and helped make them available online. (Knight attempted legal action against the Freedom Foundation, which ended last year when she lost and was ordered to pay the Freedom Foundation’s legal costs.)

After dithering and turning a minor story into a week of bad press, Dwight Pelz, then the chairman of the State Democrats, finally made clear the videos of Knight demonstrated values inconsistent with what the Democrat Party believed. Pelz emphasized that the Party had not solicited funds from Knight. Most candidates divested their campaigns of funds from Knight. In fact, the only candidates to keep Knight's money were State Supreme Court Justice Susan Owens and President Barak Obama.

Political memories are short. Add to that the success of Knight's legal persecution of former RSE followers and the video record of Knight's bizarre and bigoted statements has all but disappeared. This has allowed the latest recipients of Knight's political cash to claim she was somehow taken out of context in the previous controversy.

This creates an odd and troubling scenario.

Organizations like JZ Knight can clearly buy significant influence within a political party, but should they be able to completely suppress the truth? By spending millions of dollars on litigation and harassment of hundreds of former members and others, should they be able to "put the genie back in the bottle"?

I don't think so. This is why I took the extraordinary step of submitting the original videos to Thurston County and other government entities involved in this controversy. This forces the politicians involved to confront the views of one of their major supporters, but it also means any citizen can request the videos as a public record and judge for themselves.

If you want to get a copy of these videos, download this information request document, fill in your contact information, and send it to Thurston County.

Fortunately for everyone who lives in the United States, we have a constitution that protects free speech. This includes Knight and her ancient warrior whom she claims travels through space and time to Yelm to make nasty comments about Mexicans, Catholics, Jews, and organic farmers. With freedom comes responsibility. However bizarre the facts, Freedom Foundation believes in transparency and accountability for public officials, even when a 35,000 year old warrior would prefer they remain secret.

Freedom Foundation Sued for Exposing JZ Knight, Politicians

May 20, 2014 Jeff Rhodes Managing Editor

“When it comes to sheer, unadorned racism, Donald Sterling can’t hold a candle to JZ Knight.”

JZ Knight is desperately trying to suppress videos that show her making bizarre, bigoted statements in order to protect the politicians she supports and allow them to continue deceiving the public.

On Friday, Knight filed a suit against the Freedom Foundation, an Olympia-based think and action tank, for submitting a DVD of her controversial statements to the Thurston County commissioners.

“State law protects citizens from any liability for submitting information to a government agency,” said Trent England, a Freedom Foundation attorney. “And federal courts have protected disclosures exactly like this, where an important public issue was at stake. In this case, the issue is politicians accepting support from a bigot and then both parties lying about it.”

When the videos first surfaced two years ago, several political candidates and the Washington State Democratic Party were forced to repudiate Knight and give away contributions she had made to their campaigns.

One, Thurston County Commissioner Sandra Romero, described Knight’s videotaped statements as “vile, racist and divisive.... (T)hese hateful comments are the complete opposite of everything I stand for. I denounce them. I condemn them.”

(Still online is video of Knight’s previous endorsement of Romero.)

Knight, who claims she is able to “channel” the spirit of a 35,000-year-old warrior named Ramtha, operates the Ramtha School of Enlightenment from a sprawling compound in Yelm.

Despite the still-simmering controversy, earlier this year the Thurston County Democratic Party, a group that supports Romero and over which she has considerable influence, voted unanimously to accept another $65,000 contribution from Knight.

Thurston Democrat County Chairman Roger Erskine later defended Knight as “a very good, strong Democrat.”

Romero, meanwhile, has reversed her earlier position, now saying of Knight, “I don’t believe she’s a bigot.”

Knight, Romero and other public figures also claimed the videos had been altered in some way to make them appear more damaging.

To disprove to these allegations, the Freedom Foundation submitted DVDs of the relevant clips lifted from the longer video to the Thurston County commissioners.

“When it comes to sheer, unadorned racism, Donald Sterling can’t hold a candle to JZ Knight,” England said, “and I think government is more important even than the NBA.

“The Freedom Foundation released clips of the JZ Knight videos to give officials and the public the truth,” he said. “Knight wants to hide the truth, but I trust the federal courts will see through her frivolous claims.”

A preliminary hearing on Knight’s request for a temporary restraining order to keep the videos secret is scheduled for 11 a.m. on Wednesday, May 21, in U.S. District Court for the Western District of Washington in Tacoma.

Judge Denies JZ Knight's Request to Suppress Vulgar Videos

May 23, 2014 Jeff Rhodes Managing Editor

A Tacoma judge declined her motion for temporary restraining order, saying there's no compelling evidence that Knight would be likely to prevail when lawsuit heard

JZ Knight suffered a procedural setback on Wednesday when a Tacoma judge denied her motion to keep videos on which she makes racist statements under wraps until a larger copyright infringement lawsuit is resolved.

U.S. District Court Judge Benjamin Settle said Knight's attorneys failed to show there was a substantial likelihood she would prevail on the merits of the case during the regular trial or that she would be irreparably harmed if the videos were not immediately suppressed.

"There isn't sufficient evidence to persuade this court of either of those things," he said.

The highlight of the hearing came when Settle ruled the videos could be played in the courtroom -- over the vehement objections of Knight's legal team.

Knight, who claims she can channel a 35,000-year-old warrior named Ramtha and operates the Ramtha School for Enlightenment from a walled compound in Yelm, last week filed suit against the Freedom Foundation, an Olympia-based conservative think tank, and Freedom Foundation staff member Glen Morgan, along with his wife, an eighth-grade teacher with no other ties to the case.

Morgan first acquired the damaging videos from an anonymous source two years ago. Recorded during an online webcast, the videos show Knight engaged in a series of obscenity-laced rants directed at Catholics, gays, Mexicans and other minority groups.

When the material was made public in 2012, the Washington State Democratic Party repudiated her comments and diverted a $70,000 donation from Knight to another liberal organization.

Several individual candidates, such as Thurston County Commissioner Sandra Romero, U.S. Rep. Denny Heck and legislative candidate Bruce Lackney — all Democrats — also returned campaign donations from Knight.

The issue cropped up again several weeks ago, when it was discovered that the Thurston County Democratic Party had voted to accept a new $65,000 donation from Knight. When confronted about its decision, the party chair, Roger Erskine, suggested the videos might have been edited -- an allegation Romero and others had made when they first surfaced two years ago.

Knight's lead attorney, Andrea McNeeley, was particularly incensed that Morgan chose to answer that charge by taking the tapes to a Thurston County commissioners meeting, where they were entered into the public record.

"That was nothing but a deliberate attempt to launder them through the public disclosure laws," she said. "His purpose was to embarrass JZ Knight and embarrass Democrats. But that doesn't entitle him to take proprietary information and disseminate it."

McNeeley said the videos were lifted from a copyrighted webcast and every viewer who watched it online signed a nondisclosure agreement that prevented them from sharing the content. She also accused Morgan or the source who forwarded the clips to him of "carefully selecting the most provocative moments of the presentation" to make Knight look foolish.

"JZ Knight offers a complex, integrated, ongoing program that includes a counseling component," she said. "What she does may be outside most people's comfort zone, but it is of great value to her many clients."

Attorney Michelle Earl Hubbard, representing both Morgan and the Freedom Foundation, countered that the entire cache of videotapes includes 17 hours of material.

"Of course it was edited for length," she said. "But that doesn't change the nature of what's on the 42 minutes of video that was released."

Earl Hubbard said Knight can't accuse Morgan of doctoring the tapes or showing the scenes out of context and then deny him an opportunity to show otherwise by suppressing them entirely.

"He used only what was needed," she said. "That's the essence of fair use."

Earl Hubbard refuted claims by the plaintiffs that the videos had been posted online a few weeks, noting that they'd first been posted more than two years ago. She also denied the videos were distributed to "retaliate" against Knight for supporting Democratic candidates and causes.

"The Freedom Foundation is nonpartisan organization," she said. "Had a Republican taken money from someone who said what JZ Knight did, it would call on them to explain it, too."

Settle stressed that Wednesday's preliminary hearing would only deal with Knight's request for a temporary restraining order and would not consider the larger questions of copyright infringement and fair use.

He encouraged Knight's lawyers to pursue a temporary injunction if they still wanted to attempt to suppress the videos; they said they expected to file for one within a week.

Dear Ted: We'd Be Proud to Have You as Our Guest at the NW Freedom Shootout

August 4, 2014 Tom McCabe CEO

If political correctness is a problem, consider attending an event that's about as politically incorrect as it gets.

Below is a letter the Freedom Foundation sent on Friday to rock legend Ted Nugent — whose scheduled concert at the Emerald Queen Casino in Tacoma was canceled last week when authorities there learned he'd been quoted calling President Obama a “subhuman mongrel.” We'll let you know if he responds.

Aug. 1, 2014

Dear Ted —

As one of the nation's most forthright defenders of individual liberty, you no doubt appreciate better than anyone the irony of the Left's mock outrage over your recent comments about President Obama.

Moreover, we're confident you understand losing a gig at venues like Tacoma's Emerald Queen Casino is a small price to pay for the right to express your indignation with the present occupant of the White House in characteristically colorful — but absolutely not racist — terms.

At the Freedom Foundation, we cherish the candor you've made the cornerstone of your career, and in our own way we defend liberty in equally unapologetic terms. Accordingly, we'd honored if you'd consider answering your critics in Washington by joining us at an event we're planning that's right up your alley — the 2014 Northwest Freedom Shootout.

The event is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 16, at the Evergreen Sportsmen's Club near Olympia, which is considered the West Coast's premiere shooting facility, and annually attracts thousands of gun enthusiasts from across the Pacific Northwest. As one of the nation's foremost advocates for Second Amendment rights, you'd be welcome with open arms by our members and attendees.

But the Shootout is more than just an occasion to shoot (although it's certainly that). It's also a spectacular celebration of freedom, and we'd love nothing more than to make you the centerpiece of both.

Please let us know at your earliest convenience whether you'd consider attending this fun and important event as our guest so we can make the necessary arrangements. And if not, would you at least consider letting us tape an interview with you for our daily radio show, which is heard on station's throughout Washington state? Again, what better way respond to your detractors than with an in-your-face gesture right in their backyard?

Thanks for your time, your consideration and all you do in the cause of freedom.

Respectfully yours,

Tom McCabe, CEO

Responding to Two Minutes of Hate with the Truth – In the End the Truth Will Set Even the Thurston County Democratic Party Free

August 5, 2014 Glen Morgan Grassroots Director

In George Orwell's novel "1984," he describes a daily ritual wherein the party of the ruling government mandates a daily "two minutes of hate" directed at external "enemies."

Here and now, the Thurston County Democrat Party's equivalent two minutes of hate can be found in its monthly newsletter—usually the editorials written by local political leadership. True to tradition, the recent publication's two minutes of hate was written by Dennis Mansker, editor of The Democrat, and directed at the Freedom Foundation and its staff.

You can read the article here.

While this is not the first time hatred from the party's poobahs has been directed at our organization, Mansker's latest diatribe ratchets up the vitriol to unprecedented levels of toxicity.

At first blush, it isn't clear why the Thurston County Democratic Party is so filled with hatred and anger. Its chosen political leaders dominate nearly all levels of Thurston County government. The Thurston County commissioners are all Democrats and they're managing its affairs as only party Democrats in good standing can.

In addition to ignoring the voters and building a $45-million jail that still sits empty four years later, actively driving many businesses (like Ritchie Brothers) elsewhere, and losing a $12 million jury trial a few weeks ago for violating constitutional due process (among other violations), they are also governing a county that continues to suffer budget shortfalls and embarrassing financial setbacks.

The Thurston County Democratic Party is living its political dream after achieving nearly every electoral goal its leaders set for themselves. They should be celebrating not hating.

Still, they manage to take time out of their busy schedule of social engineering and central planning to lob hate bombs at the Freedom Foundation, and their motives for doing so couldn't be more transparent. The first is that the largest financial supporter of the Thurston County Democratic Party is local hate cult leader and scam artist JZ Knight -- whose day job is channeling a 35,000-year-old Lemurian warrior who entertains her brainwashed followers by preaching hatred and donating lots of money to the Democratic Party.

Among JZ Knight/Ramtha's recent highlights:

- On Jews: "F—k God's chosen people! I think they have earned enough cash to have paid their way out of the g-ddamned gas chambers by now," and "Your God should have redeemed you from Germany."
- On Mexicans: "The invasion of the Mexicans who just breed like rabbits (audience laughter), they are poison," "I'm telling you this, every G—damn Mexican family is a Catholic — (more laughter) they're breeding like f—ing rabbits," and "All Mexicans are not worthy of conscious thought."
- On Catholics: "F—k you, you Catholics!" "We will come on you in a terror," and, "We will bring... St. Peter's temple down and we will swallow it in the sea."
- On Gays: "All gay men were once Catholic women"

With these statements and others well documented and exposed by a variety of news media, including articles by the Western Free Press, Watchdog Wire, Northwest Daily Marker, the Tacoma News Tribune, Seattle Times, The Olympian, The Seattle Weekly, NPR, and even the Southern Poverty Law Center, the Thurston County Democratic Party has enthusiastically aligned itself with its largest donor.

To ensure the Thurston County commissioners understood the nature and beliefs of Knight's doctrine of hate, I provided video excerpts of these statements at a commissioner meeting a few months ago, as documented here. For this attempt to expose the truth and inform the elected officials, JZ Knight/Ramtha sued both my wife and I and the Freedom Foundation in federal court (JZ Knight v. Morgan, et al).

It's not clear if the venom spewed by a 35,000-year-old Lemurian warrior through a con artist mouthpiece in Yelm has influenced the Thurston County Democratic Party, or if the two minutes of hatred expressed in the Democrat newsletter was an attraction for the JZ Knight/Ramtha crew to become the Democratic Party's biggest donor. Either way, this is a mutual admiration society that has been lucrative for the Thurston County Democrats and allowed them to use dirty money to fuel their own hate.

We support the First Amendment right of the Thurston County Democratic Party and JZ Knight to preach hatred and make as many inflammatory statements as they desire. Regardless of how strongly we disagree with the content of their comments, they have a right to express it. We should all be thankful we live in a nation which still allows the freedom of speech.

However, with free speech comes some responsibility for that speech, and while factual inaccuracies dominated the Thurston County Democratic Party's newsletter attack on the Freedom Foundation, there are a few points worth correcting.

First, the author claims the Freedom Foundation is just a member of the State Policy Network (SPN), which is true, but very much a misleading understatement. The Freedom Foundation and our founders were instrumental in helping to create the State Policy Network as it exists today. If not for our founders, Bob Williams and Lynn Harsh, it's unlikely that SPN would have grown into the national organization it has become today. They are both still very involved in expanding and helping to grow the State Policy Network.

Secondly, the author ignorantly repeats un-informed talking points about the Koch Brothers, the Waltons, and other libertarian and conservative national donors as a source of funding for the Freedom Foundation. We wish he was accurate, and we would appreciate any introduction he can make between the Freedom Foundation and any of these sources of private donations.

We would proudly accept their donations provided they don't attempt to change or influence our mission of expanding individual freedoms, increasing prosperity and improving government accountability and transparency.

However, the typical donor to the Freedom Foundation is like Robert B. Stewart, former mayor of Bremerton and longtime citizen activist. Bob passed away in 2011, and his legacy donation in 2012 has helped the Freedom Foundation continue our mission. We are proud to accept these donations from honorable civic-minded people like the late Robert Stewart who want to make a positive change in Washington State. Bob Stewart's legacy of political activism and concern for our future lives on at the Freedom Foundation.

Finally, the Thurston County Democratic Party may desire the enmity of the Freedom Foundation, but the Freedom Foundation just wants to help all citizens see the truth about free markets, individual freedom, government accountability, and personal responsibility. At the Freedom Foundation, we are eternally optimistic that over time the truth can set you free, and freedom is all we desire for every member of our community—including those who lead the Thurston County Democratic Party and the rest of us in our community who suffer when the candidates endorsed by this organization succeed in gaining political power.

While Dennis Mansker and the Thurston County Democratic Party certainly may direct their two minutes of hate at the Freedom Foundation, our staff and our generous donors, we will continue our mission. They are proud to be bankrolled by a hate-filled cult leader, and we will continue to raise money from civic-minded citizens from all around Washington State who desire freedom and support our mission.

While they may support politicians, policies and bureaucrats who continue to make a mess out of government and inflict personal pain and suffering in our communities, the Freedom Foundation will continue to expose the truth about the results of these harmful policies.

In the end, we believe freedom and truth will triumph over bigotry and deceit.

Thurston Democrats take $65,000 from JZ Knight, despite old video hitting Catholics, Mexicans

By BRAD SHANNON

Olympian April 30, 2014

Facebook Twitter Google Plus Reddit E-mail Print

JZK, INC.

J.Z. Knight, the Yelm-based spirit channeler with followers around the world, has given $65,000 to Thurston County Democrats for political activities this year, the largest of any donor. The move reverses a position of Democrats in 2012 – when the state Democratic Party gave away $70,000 and local Democratic candidates gave away smaller contributions from Knight and her Ramtha School of Enlightenment.

The spurning of contributions in 2012 came after a right-of-center think tank posted videos online showing Knight ranting about Catholics, gays and Mexicans, whom she said bred like rabbits.

This time, the county party is resisting calls by the Freedom Foundation, the libertarian-styled think tank in Olympia that posted the videos, and state Sen. Tim Sheldon to give the money back. Party chairman Roger Erskine said he welcomes the money that will be used to sponsor a yearly Kennedy dinner later this year and assist with party activities, but not used for donations to candidates.

"We're comfortable that she is in fact a good Democrat and she supports our program. We're thankful for the gift," Erskine said. "We reported this quite a while ago (to the Public Disclosure Commission). We have not had a single inquiry."

The foundation posted a report on Knight and the donations on its web site on Wednesday, asking why the party would accept the contributions given Knight's statements on the videos.

"We definitely think the Thurston County Democrats should give back the money. And this time actually give it back to the source rather than simply funneling it to another liberal organization. If it was the right thing to do then, it's the right thing to do now. Since when is there a statute of limitations on sleaze?" said Jeff Rhodes, managing editor of the libertarian Freedom Foundation's publications, in an email.

Knight's company – JZK, Inc. – has won two legal fights over the videotapes, which it has said took Knight's comments out of context. It secured a Thurston County judge's order last year preventing a former student of her Ramtha School of Enlightenment from distributing portions of videos that came from training sessions. The school asserted copyright control over the material.

That ruling and another stemming from the school's lawsuit against the ex-student, Virginia Coverdale, are on appeal at the state Supreme Court, and no court date has been set. See details in a news report from Jeremy Pawloski of The Olympian.

Knight's spokesman Rob Wynne released a statement this week from the school that cast doubt on the legitimacy of the videos:

"It has taken a lot of effort to reveal the lengths to which our critics have gone to cast JZ Knight in a false light in order to support their vitriolic agenda. Only when put under oath in litigation did we finally get the truth. Court documents are available for public inspection in Thurston County in the case against Virginia Coverdale and in the New Zealand High Court in Auckland in the case against David McCarthy. JZK, Inc. received admissions by both defendants that the videos they disseminated in 2012 had first been edited. Virginia hired a video editor to create what she wanted. David did the editing himself to create the impressions he wanted, including altering audio tracks from the original video recordings. Our critics aren't happy that the truth contradicts the image of the 'evil demon' they promulgate. To them, Democratic officials had been corrupted or fooled by JZ Knight but not our critics. They wouldn't let facts distract them so they ignore the conclusions of competent authorities and become vigilantes. There is a way to find truth in our courts of law. In the courts, justice is served against vigilantes who lie, slander, and abuse the public trust. And just like in November 2012, the public won't forget who has abused their trust.

UPDATE: David McCarthy responded Thursday:

Mr. Wynne's press release is full of false and malicious statements against me.

There are no court documents in New Zealand that resemble anything that Mr. Wynne said about me. My initial defense documents haven't even been turned in.

I did not alter the audio. As Sandra Romero pointed out in her October 2012 statement, it was apparent that my video was not doctored.

No court has stated that I did any of the things that Wynne attributed to me.

Erskine described Knight as an upstanding citizen and said "she keeps winning business person of the year awards from her (Yelm) constituency – the chamber of commerce out there.”

Erskine – and Sandra Romero, a county commissioner who gave away Knight’s contributions to a charity helping immigrants in 2012 – both question whether Knight is racist. They question whether the profanity-laced videos showing her denigrating the Catholic church, gays and Mexican were accurate. In one video Knight describes a population explosion from Mexican Catholics; in others she complains of the church and says gay men were once Catholic women.

“Those are allegations that have been made. Those are being dealt with in the courts,” Erskine said. “As far as I know the courts have not charged her with anything. ... I don’t know the background on that. She was never jailed; she has never paid any fines.”

Erskine said Thurston Democrats put the issue to a vote of their central committee. “They voted unanimously to accept the gift,” he said. “We had a good thorough discussion about it. A motion was made and it was adopted.”

“I think the Freedom Foundation, if they had received the money, would not have said anything except thank you. She does not agree with their goals and platform,” Erskine added.

Romero said the videos, which included pictures of her attending a Knight-sponsored candidate forum in 2012, may have been tampered. “Evidently they even took some of her comments and juxtaposed some of them,” she said.

“I don’t believe she is a bigot, just because of the people I know that are part of her school,” Romero added. “They are probably more (racially) integrated there than any other place in the county. Maybe Lacey is better integrated. I think it’s all electioneering. It’s all campaigning. It’s spreading divisiveness. I just want people to work together. We have a lot of issues that divisiveness does not help solve.”

That is a lot different view than Romero had in 2012 when she decided to give away Knight’s contribution after seeing a video of Knight talking about Mexicans. At that time, Romero said:

“Unlike the other videos that were heavily edited, spliced and taken out of context this most recent one appeared to be undoctored. I am appalled by Ms. Knight’s outrageous anti-Mexican, anti-Catholic raging. These vile, racist, and divisive comments against responsible and caring people have no place in Thurston County, or anywhere else. I am particularly stunned by these anti-human rights comments from her, because of her otherwise very positive record of supporting scholarships for students in the Yelm area, her support for positive environmental organizations and policies, her support of local social service agencies and her significant contributions to the economy in southeast Thurston County. However, these hateful comments are the complete opposite of everything I stand for. I denounce them. I condemn them.”

Knight says she channels a 35,000-year-old warrior and in 1998 founded her Yelm school to teach others about her beliefs. The school has had tens of thousands of followers.

Freedom Foundation uses tactics of intimidation

By JZ Knight

Contributing writer August 2, 2014

JZ Knight

COURTESY PHOTO

Between now and the Nov. 4 election there will be a lot of talk about “freedom.”

Many right-wing groups use it in their names, including Freedom Works, Faith and Freedom Institute, Faith and Freedom Coalition, Freedom Federation, Freedom March, Freedom Works, Freedom Watch and many others.

Here in Washington we have the Freedom Foundation. You may have heard of it. I certainly have. In 2012, I donated funds to Democratic candidates after which the Freedom Foundation became involved in the illegal recording and distribution of videos from Ramtha’s School of Enlightenment that were heavily edited and posted online.

Two people who illegally disseminated the pirated videos admitted to editing the originals in two separate courts of law. One of the two lost a lawsuit and was ordered to pay more than $600,000 in attorney’s fees and costs.

The Freedom Foundation still continues to petition the courts to post more of these videos online. It has certainly used its freedom to attack me. But I'm just one of many citizens in Thurston County and Washington state on its list of people it opposes.

I'm an easy target. I'm a public person who donates to Democrats like Mary Hall, the first Democratic auditor in Thurston County in 71 years. In the 2012 election, she defeated a Republican candidate backed by the Freedom Foundation.

There is a common thread that runs through the Freedom Foundation and similar ideological groups, including:

- Freedom from taxes for corporations and wealthy people.
- Freedom from regulations so industry can pollute our air and water.
- Freedom to oppose the minimum wage.
- Freedom to attack the voting rights of minorities.
- Freedom to misrepresent the Affordable Care Act.

This is nothing new. What we are seeing in Thurston County today echoes recent history. The book, "Dallas 1963," examines right-wing groups that conspired to oppose President John F. Kennedy 50 years ago. The New Yorker magazine noted that the same right-wing terms from 1963 are in use today:

"Now, as then, there is said to be a conspiracy in the highest places to end American Constitutional rule and replace it with a Marxist dictatorship, evidenced by a plan in which your family doctor will be replaced by a federal bureaucrat.... There is also the conviction, in both eras, that only a handful of Congressmen and polemicists (then mostly in newspapers; now on TV) stand between honest Americans and the apocalypse, and that the man presiding over that plan is not just a dupe but personally depraved, an active collaborator with our enemies, a secret something or other, and any necessary means to bring about the end of his reign are justified and appropriate."

In the 1960s, Claire Conner's parents were the leaders of the Chicago branch of the John Birch Society. In her book, "Wrapped in the Flag: What I Learned Growing Up in America's Radical Right," Conner writes that modern right-wingers promote the same agenda as those who revered Senator Joseph McCarthy and other right-wing stalwarts.

In a book review, the Tampa Bay Times noted "today's tea party is the modern-day rebirth of the John Birch Society. They share a worldview, (Conner) says. The same paranoid distrust of government. The same desire to protect the rich. The same cruel streak that blames the poor for their poverty and seeks to deny government help on that basis. The same willingness to believe all manner of bizarre claims against political leaders they don't like."

If right-wing groups like the Freedom Foundation called themselves the John Birch Society II, it would be cause for alarm. By wrapping themselves in the American flag and shouting "Freedom!" they seek to soften their agenda by making it sound patriotic.

Here in Washington, the Freedom Foundation's tactics of attempting to intimidate its enemies – opposing the SeaTac minimum wage, opposing working people who join labor unions, drowning the IRS in paperwork, promoting voter ID laws to make it harder for minorities to vote – isn't patriotic; it is destructive.

Thurston County and Washington don't need their brand of "freedom."

JZ Knight's attack on Freedom Foundation predictably disingenuous

By Jeff Rhodes

Contributing writer August 17, 2014 Updated 3 hours ago

COURTESY PHOTO

You'd think a person who earns a living persuading people she's able to channel the spirit of someone who's been dead for 35,000 years would recognize she has a slight credibility problem and leave well enough alone.

But JZ Knight doesn't embarrass easily.

Predictably, Knight's Aug. 2 op-ed assault on our organization ("Freedom Foundation uses tactics of intimidation") was a masterpiece of misdirection that tried – and failed – to discredit the accuser rather than disprove the charge.

Referring to a collection of videotapes made public in 2012 by the Freedom Foundation on which Knight is shown engaged in obscenity-laced attacks on Mexicans, Catholics, Jews, gays and other minorities, she dismissively notes they were "heavily edited."

The implication is that her despicable comments were somehow doctored or taken out of context. But in fact, the videos were only edited for length because there is more than 17 hours' worth of jaw-dropping material from which to choose.

If Knight is genuinely interested in the truth, why doesn't she just release the material in its entirety rather than paying an army of lawyers to keep all of it under wraps? Our aim is to let people know what she actually said while hers is to keep it from them.

She also claims to have won a $600,000 court judgment over the release of the tapes, but what she neglects to mention is that she didn't win that judgment against us. In the only settled case between Knight and the Freedom Foundation, a judge rejected her claims and ordered her to pay our legal costs.

We're fully confident her current lawsuit against us will end no differently.

Her pleas of victimhood aside, the Freedom Foundation is in the business of fiercely defending free markets and the First Amendment rights of all Americans. As such, we ordinarily couldn't care less what Knight says or how many followers she has, but we do have a compelling interest in exposing who's pulling the strings in local politics.

To its credit, the Washington State Democratic Party condemned Knight and declined a $60,000 donation from her when the incendiary tapes first came to light in 2012. But party leaders were strangely silent when she subsequently wrote a check for a similar amount to the Thurston County Democrats this spring.

The Freedom Foundation was compelled to expose this double standard.

Knight would have you believe our disagreement with her is an attempt to restrict her freedom and stifle her political speech. She couldn't be more wrong. Our goal is simply to pull back the veil and show the power broker of the Thurston County Democrats for who she is. We'd do the same if local Republicans were heavily underwritten by an unrepentant bigot.

That Knight would attempt to divert attention from her own transgressions – and those of the party that unapologetically embraces her – by misrepresenting the motives of the organization that exposed the incontrovertible bond they share should come as no surprise whatsoever.

Thankfully, her track record does more to unravel her credibility than we ever could.

Jeff Rhodes is managing editor of the Freedom Foundation, an Olympia-based free-market think tank.

Inslee conspiring with union to get around the law

Twitter Facebook Google+

Published September 16, 2014

Jay Inslee is working with SEIU 775 “in order to maintain the unions’ ability to automatically deduct dues from certain union-represented workers”, according to records uncovered by the Freedom Foundation. The US Supreme Court ruled over the summer that “partial public employees’ - independent workers who receive subsidies from the state did not fall under union laws, and that it was therefore unconstitutional for unions to force these workers to pay union dues. In Washington, “individual home health care providers are represented by SEUI Local 775”. These workers, although told they do not have to be a member of a union, have had full union dues taken from them in order to cover SEUI 775’s political spending and other costs. However, “the SEIU is seeking to deceptively get nonmembers to sign a membership form” that would allow SEIU 775 to take control of their electronic signature and force them into a labor union that they would not be able to leave, sue, or stop paying dues to. Despite the unconstitutionality of forcing workers to give money to a political ally that contributed $1 million to his last campaign [link to Our WA page], Inslee has decided to take matters into his own hands. “Documents from Inslee’s office indicate his administration has been communicating and coordinating extensively with organized labor” with the intention of bypassing the US Supreme Court decision. Inslee has been helping the unions find a way to “accept electronic signatures or taped declarations to serve as written permission to pay dues” among other methods of coercion. Evidently an oath to follow the law doesn’t override Inslee’s desire to help out his campaign donors, despite a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

Inslee ignores red ink, gives $$$ to campaign donors

Twitter Facebook Google+

Published September 19, 2014

The state's accountants at the Office of Financial Management (OFM) released the latest projection of revenue available for the state's next two-year budget, and as expected they warned lawmakers that they face red ink if they don't start controlling spending.

OFM provided a "good news/bad news" scenario for legislators. It's "good" that OFM "upped the forecast of revenue for the current budget cycle (2013-2015) by $169 million over its June forecast. OFM also forecast a revenue bump of about $139 million for the 2015-17 biennium." That will mean "revenue for the current cycle is $33.95 billion and about $36.7 billion for the next two-year budget cycle, which begins July 1, 2015."

Despite this expected $2.7 billion growth in money to spend, OFM had "bad" news as well, pointing out that:

“revenue growth for 2015–17 will fall far short of what will be needed to maintain current services, cover mandatory increases and provide an additional $1 billion to $2 billion to meet the state’s constitutional basic education obligations.”

Unfortunately, Jay Inslee ignored this budget reality as he wrapped up negotiations with the various state employee unions, because for Inslee it’s time to reward his million-dollar campaign donors, like SEIU 775 and the Washington Federation of State Employees (WFSE).

WFSE trumpeted in a blast email that its “negotiators” had concluded their work with Jay Inslee’s team, and could report that despite this projected deficit, the 30,000 state employees WFSE represented would get the raise the union had invested in back during the 2012 campaign, as Inslee agreed to “raise worker pay by 3 percent in July 2015 and approximately 1.8 percent the following year. Some workers will get additional 2.5 percent raises.”

The Olympian spread the “good” news under the headline “State worker pay drought over?” even while noting in the story that no such drought existed, since “Roughly a third of workers receive step raises each year” based on their experience.

That’s right, “roughly a third” of state employees have received raises every year, despite the constant refrain – repeated by Inslee – that state workers have gone without pay raises for six years.

The Olympian did caution readers that Inslee's pay raise was not a done deal, as the deal will "require a determination by Inslee's budget office that it is financially feasible in light of the state's projected $1 billion to $3 billion shortfall in 2015-17 due largely to a huge investment that is due for K-12 public schools, and state lawmakers would need to provide funds to pay for the raises."

So, if Inslee comes out for a tax increase later this year, and says it's "for the children", you might ask first how much of those higher taxes are really going to his big campaign donors?

- Political Activities Compliance Initiative (PACI). This initiative addressed allegations of prohibited political campaign activities by 501(c)(3) organizations.

Treasury and the IRS issued a revenue ruling to educate section 501(c)(3) exempt organizations about permissible and impermissible activities in the political arena. Additionally, EO updated Publication 1828, Tax Guide for Churches and Religious Organizations. EO also provided guidance about political activities in public presentations, including the IRS Nationwide Tax Forums and Tax Talk Today, the IRS web-based program for practitioners.

In addition to guidance and education, EO has examined over 250 organizations based on allegations of political activity during the 2004, 2006 and 2008 federal election years. EO substantiated the allegations in over half of the examinations and closed most of these with a warning to comply with the ban on political activities in the future. EO revoked the tax-exempt status of seven non-compliant organizations.

The chart below tracks the most common types of PACI allegations:

 Because the majority of complaints for the 2010 election year came in during the later part of the year, they are still going through the classification process, so they are not included in the chart.*

As we move review of allegations of political campaign intervention from project to process, the guidance and expertise developed over the past few election cycles will enable us to continue to handle these allegations appropriately, both at the classification stage and through the examination process.

2006 Political Activities Compliance Initiative

On February 22, 2006, the IRS issued its report on the Political Activities Compliance Initiative for election year 2004 (2004 PACI). The report noted that, in nearly three quarters of the cases reviewed, improper political intervention by section 501(c)(3) organizations was substantiated. In the face of such a high level of non-compliance, the IRS launched the Political Activities Compliance Initiative for election year 2006 (2006 PACI), which included expedited timeframes for classification and case assignment and established a group of referral classifiers dedicated to PACI cases, all directed at providing swift notice to organizations with the hope of stopping political intervention as quickly as possible. At the same time, the IRS initiated the Political Contribution Sub-Project (2006 PACI-PC) in 2006. PACI-PC maximizes enforcement resources by using internet research to identify instances of direct campaign contributions by section 501(c)(3) organizations to candidates for public office and political organizations that support them.

Summary

This report provides 2006 PACI information and statistics and compares them to the results of the 2004 PACI¹. Because only a few 2006 PACI cases have closed thus far, we do not address the attributes of closed cases at this time.

- In 2004, the IRS received 166 referrals alleging political campaign intervention by section 501(c)(3) organizations, resulting in 110 organizations selected for examination.
- In 2006, the number of referrals received increased to 237; but, the number of referrals selected for examination remained relatively consistent at 100.
- In both 2004 and 2006, referrals alleging violations by churches and non-churches were almost evenly split, as were the referrals ultimately selected for examination.
- Similar levels and types of allegations of prohibited political intervention occurred in both 2004 and 2006.
- The 2006 PACI-PC sub-project identified 269 apparent cases of direct contributions, totaling $343,963, from section 501(c)(3) organizations to political candidates.
- Initial IRS contact in 2006 PACI-PC cases resulted in charities receiving over $121,000 in refunds of political contributions.

¹ The 2004 PACI covered a six month period which included the Presidential election; the 2006 PACI covered a nine month non-presidential election period.

2006 POLITICAL ACTIVITIES COMPLIANCE INITIATIVE

Methodology

2006 PACI utilized expedited, limited-scope examinations to address referrals alleging political campaign intervention by section 501(c)(3) organizations. The examination method varied depending on the type of organization and the facts of the case. All church examinations were conducted as field examinations and followed the church tax inquiry and examination procedures of IRC section 7611. Examinations of non-church organizations were conducted by correspondence or field examination.

Classification

The 2006 PACI procedures further expedited the 2004 "fast track" process for evaluating referrals alleging potential prohibited political activity by section 501(c)(3) organizations. This process enabled the IRS to intercede quickly in instances of alleged prohibited political activity and to educate the organizations to prevent potential future violations.

Upon receipt of a referral, the PACI Referral Committee, comprised of three career civil servant employees with extensive EO tax law experience, determined whether the information supported a reasonable belief that the organization may have violated the political campaign prohibition of section 501(c)(3) and, therefore, warranted further IRS action. The Referral Committee then categorized the referrals into three groups: Type A--single issue/non-complex; Type B--multiple issue/complex; and Type C--egregious/repetitive alleged violations.

The procedures set ambitious time goals for processing referrals. Referrals were to be categorized and assigned to the field, and contact was to be made with the taxpayer organization within 16 to 65 days of the IRS receipt of the referral, depending upon the referral category (Type A, B, or C) and whether the organization was a church.

The chart below shows the average time, from receipt of the referral to notice to the taxpayer, for the different case types.

2006 PACI	Number of Cases	Goal in Days	Average Timeframe
Churches Types A & B	40	65	79.6
Churches Type C	0	50	0
Non-churches Types A & B	53	29	34.8
Non-churches Type C	4	16	26

Referrals

In 2006, the IRS received 237 referrals alleging prohibited political campaign intervention by section 501(c)(3) organizations, as compared to 166 in 2004. Although the number of referrals received in 2006 exceeded those filed in 2004 by 81, the number of referrals actually selected for examination in 2006 was less than the number selected in 2004. In our view, the IRS public awareness program contributed to the rise in the number of referrals we received; whereas, the experience we gained through the 2004 PACI resulted in fewer 2006 referrals selected for examination.

In both 2004 and 2006, referrals alleging violations by churches and non-churches were almost evenly split, as were the referrals ultimately selected for examination.

The chart below compares the number of referrals received with the number of organizations selected for examination for 2004 and 2006. When comparing these figures, note that the time period for the 2004 PACI (six months) differs from the 2006 PACI (nine months).

	2004	2006
Referrals Received	166	237
Selected for Examination	110 (66%)	100 (42%)
• Churches	47 (43%)	44 (44%)
• Non-churches	63 (57%)	56 (56%)

Allegations of Political Campaign Intervention

As the following chart illustrates, the number and types of political campaign intervention alleged in the referrals selected for examination in 2004 and 2006 was similar.

Status of Cases

As of March 30, 2007, five 2004 PACI and 60 2006 PACI cases remain open. The chart below shows the disposition of the closed cases.

Review of Operations (ROO)

During 2006, EO implemented a follow-up process whereby the Review of Operations (ROO) would conduct quarterly internet research on organizations that had received written advisories for isolated incidents of political intervention to detect whether subsequent political intervention occurred. The 2006 review of the organizations identified in the 2004 PACI found no instances of repeat political intervention. While additional experience will be instructive, these results indicate that the written advisory, combined with the ROO follow-up, are important to the PACI process and are effective tools to promote compliance.

POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS SUB-PROJECT – 2006 PACI-PC

Candidates and political organizations that support candidates file reports of contributions and expenditures with state campaign finance offices. PACI-PC researches those reports to identify campaign contributions made by section 501(c)(3) organizations.

Methodology

EO conducted research of various state campaign finance report databases. The review focused on contributions reported in 2003, 2004, and 2005, the most recent information available. The research identified contributions from what initially appeared to be exempt organizations.

EO then verified that the non-church organizations were actually section 501(c)(3) organizations, and eliminated all church and non-church organizations whose contributions were in support of, or opposition to, ballot initiatives, rather than candidates.

Ultimately, 269 apparent cases of direct contributions to candidates were identified for this project. The organizations were divided into two categories, based on the amount of the contributions and whether the organization was a church. The Exempt Organizations Compliance Area (EOCA) conducted correspondence examinations of the non-church organizations that made small contributions to individual candidates. Churches and organizations that made larger contributions were referred for field examination.

	Non-Churches		Churches
	Number of Organizations	Amount of Contributions	Number of Organizations	Amount of Contributions
Correspondence Exams	126	$65,257	0	0
Field Exams	56	$234,555	87	$44,151
Totals	182	$299,812	87	$44,151

Status of Project Cases

When reviewing cases, we consider all available remedies, including issuing written advisories, imposing excise taxes and, in the most egregious cases, revocation.

Of the 269 2006 PACI-PC cases, the examinations thus far have resulted in the charities recovering refunds of prohibited contributions totaling approximately $121,098 from political campaigns. In addition, the IRS has received multiple Forms 4720, Return of Certain Excise Taxes Under Chapter 41 and 42 of the Internal Revenue Code and Forms 1120-POL, U.S. Income Tax Return for Certain Political Organizations, reporting taxes under section 4955 relating to more than $23,000 in political contributions.

To date, 92 of the 2006 PACI-PC cases are closed. Political contributions were substantiated, and written advisories were issued, in 65 of the cases. In 21 cases, political intervention was not substantiated, largely due to inaccurate information on state campaign finance databases.

Organizations identified through the 2006 PACI-PC process as having made contributions directly to candidates will be monitored for evidence of future political campaign intervention by the Review of Operations. In addition, the PACI-PC will be an on-going program to address this serious area of non-compliance.

² Prior to contact with the taxpayer, the revenue agent and/or manager determined that the case did not merit examination.

FINAL REPORT

PROJECT 302

Political Activities Compliance Initiative

Introduction

This report summarizes the 2004 Political Activity Compliance Initiative (PACI) project and the results thus far, which have been used to develop procedures for the 2006 PACI program.

The Exempt Organizations (EO) function receives information items¹ (referrals) of potential noncompliance by § 501(c)(3) organizations throughout the year; however, during the 2004 election year, EO management anticipated an increase in referrals alleging campaign intervention. In response to this anticipated increase, the Commissioner, TE/GE Division, requested that EO management institute the PACI project. The project was initiated in June 2004 and was a part of EO's multi-pronged strategy of guidance, publicity, accelerated case initiation, and outreach.

The objective of the project was to promote compliance with the IRC § 501(c)(3) prohibition against political campaign intervention by reviewing and addressing allegations of political intervention (PI) by tax exempt organizations on an expedited basis during the 2004 election year. This would not only deter organizations contacted under the program from continuing noncompliance, but also would serve to establish the IRS enforcement presence and reinforce the IRS education efforts. Because the primary focus was the November 2004 elections, the project covered all referrals received through November 30, 2004. When the project was initiated, several approaches, such as educational or other kinds of "soft" contacts, were considered, but an examination project was determined to be the most effective plan.

The issue of political campaign intervention by § 501(c)(3) organizations presents unique challenges for the IRS:

- The activities that give rise to questions of political campaign intervention also raise legitimate concerns regarding freedom of speech and religious expression;
- The Code contains no bright line test for evaluating political intervention; it requires careful balancing of all of the facts and circumstances;

¹ An information item is a communication received by the EO function from an internal or external source relating to potential noncompliance with the tax law by an exempt organization, political organization, taxable entity, or individual.

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

- The questionable activities are public and occur within the compressed period of time of the election cycle. Keeping in mind that there are over one million 501(c)(3) organizations, media reports on the activities of a small representation of those organizations can, rightly or wrongly, create an impression of widespread noncompliance; and
- The activities that must be evaluated for potential campaign intervention can be difficult to document, because they often involve events and statements that may not be recorded or otherwise captured.

If the IRS determines prohibited political intervention has occurred, it faces additional challenges:

- The existing sanctions are limited to assessing penalties based on the amount spent on the intervention, which is often de minimis, or revocation, which may not be in the public interest; and
- The disclosure restrictions of IRC section 6103 limit IRS's ability to discuss its enforcement actions.

Methodology

PACI was a comprehensive examination program of limited-scope examinations focusing on allegations of political campaign intervention by IRC § 501(c)(3) organizations referred to the IRS. Most, though not all, PACI examinations concerned alleged intervention in the 2004 election campaign.

PACI was the first EO Examination program to focus on a category of referrals, as well as the first program to proceed in such an expeditious manner. As such, the Internal Revenue Manual (IRM) did not have procedures for processing these cases. In the usual course of operations, the Classification Unit processes referrals in receipt order. Although the procedures in draft IRM 4.75.5² required the Classification Unit to begin evaluating information items (referrals) within 60 days of receipt in the Unit, it did not set a time for completing the classification. In addition, the regularly scheduled Referral Review Committee meetings were too infrequent to meet the PACI objectives. Thus, it was necessary to develop a "fast track" case initiation process to expedite classification of the PACI referrals.

All PACI referrals were reviewed for potential examination. The examination method varied depending upon the kind of organization and the facts of the case. All church cases were conducted according to the church tax inquiry and examination procedures of IRC § 7611. Examinations of organizations other than churches were conducted by correspondence or field examination, as appropriate, depending on the circumstances of each case.

² Published May 13, 2005.

Case Selection Criteria

The Referral and Claims Classification Unit of the Office of EO Examinations (Classification Unit) used the same substantive criteria for classifying PACI cases for examination as are used for all referrals.³ The standard for determining if the information warranted further IRS action is whether it supports a reasonable belief that the organization may have violated the prohibition of § 501(c)(3) that it not participate in, or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of statements), any political campaign on behalf of (or in opposition to) any candidate for public office. Procedurally, as with all EO referrals, PACI referrals were subject to Referral Review Committee review. These procedures were put in place in the 1990's to ensure equity and transparency and that no one individual could select organizations within certain classes for examination.

As with any case selected by the EO Classification Unit, selection of a case only signifies examination potential; it does not represent a conclusion. This is especially true for referrals concerning churches, as authority for initiating a church tax inquiry and, if necessary, a church tax examination, can be exercised only by the Director, EO Examinations.

The Classification Process

All cases in this project were selected by the Classification Unit from referrals from various sources that alleged acts of political campaign intervention by § 501(c)(3) organizations.⁴ The classification process for PACI cases followed established classification procedures⁵ for case selection, modified as follows to meet the project's needs:

1. The project imposed short timeframes (7-10 days rather than the usual 30-90 days);
2. PACI cases were expeditiously processed as a group;
3. PACI cases identified for examination were considered priority work; Managers could not close PACI cases without action because of resource or program considerations;
4. Due to timing and resource constraints, the project eliminated the preliminary classification recommendation by the classifier to the Referral Committee; and
5. Referrals alleging political activities were reviewed on a weekly, rather than monthly, basis by a separate, ad hoc PI Referral Committee.

³ In the usual course of operations, the vast majority of, if not all, § 501(c)(3) organization examinations alleging political campaign intervention are the result of referrals.

⁴ The Classification Unit often received multiple referrals concerning organizations. Most subsequent referrals duplicated earlier information, though it was not uncommon for a subsequent referral concerning an organization to describe a different event or provide additional information about an event described in an earlier referral.

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

Applying the Criteria

A separate, ad hoc PI Referral Review Committee was established to expedite the classification of PACI referrals in inventory as of July 25, 2004. The ad hoc PI Referral Committee was comprised of three career civil servant employees with extensive EO tax law experience. Each PI Referral Committee member independently reviewed the file contents and documented his or her recommendation. After all members had completed reviewing all the files, they jointly reviewed each case to determine the Committee recommendation. For any referral in which there was not unanimous agreement, the majority view was the recommendation of the Committee, but the dissenting view was included with the recommendation.

Case Groupings

PACI cases were grouped in three categories:

1. Pre-existing cases: referrals concerning organizations that were already selected for examination for political intervention and assigned to a field group prior to the project;
2. PACI referrals: referrals in the Classification Unit inventory awaiting classification on July 25, 2004, and referrals received July 25 through November 30, 2004; and
3. Pending cases: prior year activity referrals or follow-up actions containing allegations of political intervention by § 501(c)(3) organizations pending in the Classification Unit when the PACI began.

The number of cases in each category was as follows:

Pre-Existing Cases

Forty-four referrals (33% of total project cases) concerned § 501(c)(3) organizations already selected for examination for political intervention and assigned to an examination group prior to the start of the project.

PACI Referrals

The Classification Unit considered 166 referrals concerning 127 organizations that were in its inventory on July 25, 2004, or were received between July 25 and November 30, 2004. Thirty-nine of the referrals concerned organizations that had already been the subject of one or more referrals. Sixty-eight of the 127 organizations were selected for examination. These constituted 54% of the 127 PACI Referral organizations and 52% of all PACI cases.

The Classification Unit entered each referral into its database and, unless the organization had previously been selected, considered the organization for selection. If the organization had previously been selected for examination, and the new referral included new information, that information was associated with the existing case file. If the organization was not previously selected for examination, each subsequent referral was reviewed to determine if it presented new facts or discussed a new event. If so, the new referral was considered for examination.

Pending Cases

Twenty cases (15% of total project cases) were the result of prior year referrals or other follow-up activities containing allegations of political intervention by § 501(c)(3) organizations that were selected for examination, but still pending in the Classification Unit when the project began in July 2004.

Expedited Procedures

The concept of expedited procedures originated during a June 26, 2004, conference between the Director, Exempt Organizations and management officials of EO Examinations and EO Rulings & Agreements. On July 26-30, 2004, an eight-member team met in Dallas to develop a process that would expedite classification and, if warranted, examination of referrals alleging political intervention by § 501(c)(3) organizations.

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

The team developed an expedited process to screen referrals, build the case files, and submit the case files to the PI Referral Review Committee. The team also developed the initial contact letters and Information Document Request (IDR) templates to be used by the agents assigned the non-church cases. These pilot procedures were implemented immediately, pending final approval by the Director, EO Examinations. As the church tax inquiry and examination procedures of IRC §7611 preclude a simple contact letter being used for church cases, letters for these cases were developed case-by-case in coordination with TE/GE Counsel.

The contact letters and IDR templates were approved for use on September 15, 2004, and the first contact letter was sent to an organization on September 21, 2004.

The PACI Team worked on formalizing the procedures during the project, and incorporating project experience and recommendations from reviewers.

Description of expedited procedures

The procedures developed by the team in July and August 2004 provided for expedited case initiation. These required that the Classification Unit process referrals alleging political intervention by § 501(c)(3) organizations as very high priority, as shown by the very ambitious time goal that referrals determined to warrant examination be assigned to an examination group within 7-10 working days of receipt of the referral.

Cases were designated as Type A, which were the non-complex, usually single issue cases, or Type B, the more complex, multiple-issue cases. The Type A cases were assigned to designated revenue agents for processing as a correspondence examination. The Type B cases were assigned to various field groups based on the location of the referred organization.

An initial contact letter, L-3934, was developed by the team for use on the non-church Type A cases, and was to be sent to the organization within 5 days of receipt of the case in the group. Because Type B cases would take longer to develop, the team prepared an initial contact letter, L-3935, to be sent for the Type B cases within 2 days of receipt of the case in the group. This was designed to alert the exempt organization about the IRS's concerns, and invite a response that might address them. A standard follow-up letter was to be sent to the organization within 10 days detailing the specific conduct/activity.

Letters 3934 and 3935 could not be used for church cases because of the constraints of IRC section 7611, which governs church inquiries and examinations. Instead, the initial procedures provided that the agent forward the inquiry letter and questions to Mandatory Review within 15 days of receipt of the case.

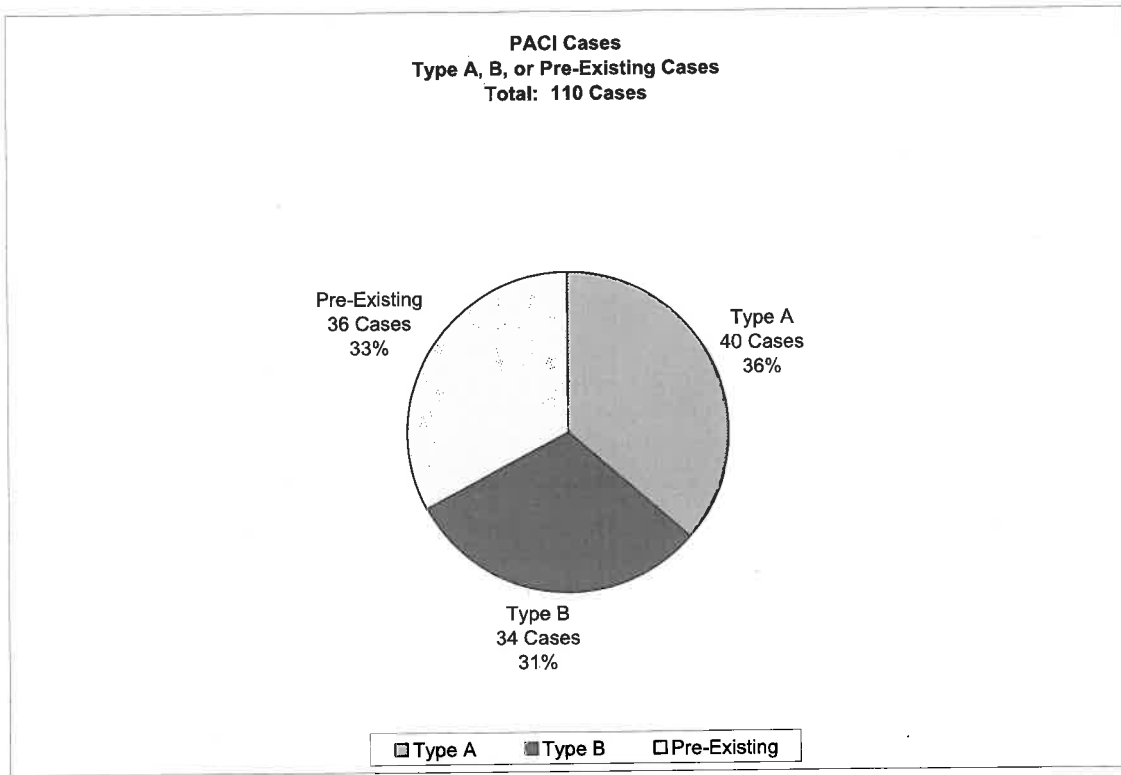

Resources

At the start of the program, there were 64 political intervention cases in inventory (see page 4 for breakdown.) Projected volume for the year was unknown, since future cases were generated by referral, making it difficult to anticipate staffing needs. Initially, Examination devoted two revenue agents full-time to the Type A cases. Type B cases were geographically disbursed to agents throughout the country who worked on them on a part-time basis. Ultimately, 43 agents, one full-time reviewer and one full-time classifier worked on the PACI project during the election period. Exact time allocated to the project has not been compiled at this point.

Types of Examinations Included in the Project

Although 132 cases were forwarded to the field, twenty two cases were surveyed. A surveyed case is one that was determined by the agent and his or her manager not to merit examination. We should note that more church cases than non-church cases selected through classification were closed by survey. This is not unusual or unexpected, given the amount and intensity of review to which church tax inquiries are subject before the Director, EO Examinations can conclude that the requisite “reasonable belief” exists to support initiation of a church tax inquiry. Thus, the PACI project for the 2004 election cycle consisted of 110 examinations. Project cases were nearly equally divided between Type A, Type B, and Pre-Existing cases, as shown in Figure 2.

As shown in Figure 3, project examinations were also nearly equally divided between churches (43%) and non-churches (57%).

Summary of Status of PACI Examinations

As of February 16, 2006, 82 of the 110 cases (74%) are considered closed. Two additional cases (2%) are closed from the examining group but are still in the review process. Examinations are in process and the organizations have been contacted in 26 cases (24%).

Types of Political Campaign Intervention in 2004 Election Cycle Cases

The alleged acts of political intervention were categorized for the 82 closed cases. Some cases had more than one alleged act of intervention. For example, if an organization official appeared to endorse a candidate during the candidate's appearance at an organization function, the referral would present two distinct issues that had to be resolved before the Service could conclusively determine whether the organization engaged in political intervention. First, the IRS would have to examine the circumstances surrounding the candidate's appearance to determine whether it was political campaign intervention rather than an educational activity. Second, even if the candidate's appearance, in itself, was not campaign intervention by the organization, actions or statements by organization officials may have constituted political intervention by the organization.

Following are the types of political intervention alleged and determined, to-date, in the referrals selected for examination under PACI:

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

- Exempt organization distributed printed documents supporting candidates:

There were 24 alleged instances in which organizations distributed printed documents supporting candidates; in 9 of the instances, the IRS determined political intervention occurred. Examples included newsletters, church bulletins, inserts in church bulletins, letters to members, etc.

- Church official made a statement during normal services endorsing candidates:

There were 19 instances in which a church official allegedly made a statement during a service endorsing or opposing a candidate. In 12 instances, the IRS determined political intervention occurred. Project results indicated that organization officials clearly understood that express endorsements are prohibited; however, some apparently did not realize that political intervention is much broader than just express endorsements.

- Candidate spoke at an official EO function:

There were 11 alleged instances involving candidates speaking at an organization function. In 9 of the instances, the IRS determined political intervention had occurred. The majority of these allegations involved church appearances. For example, in some instances, the candidate was allowed to use the church facilities in a manner that constituted campaign intervention (i.e., the appearance was not part of a candidate forum or other established policy of the organization to allow all candidates to address its membership on equal terms).

- Distribution of improper voter guides or candidate ratings:

There were 14 instances where an organization allegedly distributed an improper voter guide or candidate rating. The distribution method varied. For instance, some were made available on the organization's website; some were left on a table at the back of the church; and others were accessible through links on the organization's website. The IRS determined political intervention occurred in 4 of these instances.

- Organization posted a sign on its property endorsing a candidate:

There were 12 instances in which an organization allegedly posted a sign on its property that endorsed candidates. Generally, the referral included a picture of the sign on the organization's property. The IRS determined political intervention occurred in 9 instances.

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

- Organization endorsed candidates on its website or through links on its website:

There were 15 instances in which an organization allegedly posted material on its website, or included a link on its website to website(s) that endorsed candidates. The IRS determined political intervention occurred in 7 instances.

- Verbal endorsements by a organization official:

There were 8 instances in which an official of a non-church organization allegedly endorsed a candidate verbally. These are in addition to the 19 alleged acts of political campaign intervention noted above under the category “Church official made statement during normal services endorsing a candidate.” The IRS determined political intervention occurred in 6 instances.

- Organization made a political contribution to a candidate:

The project identified 7 alleged instances in which an organization used its own funds to contribute to a campaign. This type of political intervention was easy to document, especially when the funds came from an organization’s checking account. The IRS determined political intervention in 5 instances.

- Non-candidate endorsed a candidate at an organization function:

There were 4 cases in which an organization allegedly allowed an individual, other than a candidate, to endorse a candidate during a speech at the organization’s function. Most of these instances involved well-known individuals, and most of these situations involved churches. In all 4 instances, the IRS determined political intervention.

- Other miscellaneous acts of political campaign intervention.

Closed Case Results

As of February 16, 2006, we have closed 82 cases, 4 of which are pending in Appeals. Forty of the closed cases (49%) were churches, and 42 (51%) were non-churches.

Figure 8

Closed Cases	Church	Non-Church	Total
Type A	26	7	33
Type B	3	19	22
Pre-Existing	11	16	27
Total	40	42	82

Sixty-eight percent (68%) of the examinations resulted in no-change written advisories issued to the organization⁶ and 22% resulted in no-change. A no-change examination results when the facts developed during the examination indicate that the organization did not intervene in a political campaign within the meaning of section 501(c)(3). See Figure 9.

We should note that the term “no-change written advisory” has a broader meaning in the context of PACI than it is usually understood to mean. In the usual course of operations, a “no-change advisory” is usually issued when an examination identifies issues or activities that are insubstantial, but, if conducted to a greater extent, could affect the organization’s exempt status. In the PACI, the term no-change advisory encompasses cases in which the organization was found to have intervened in a political campaign within the meaning of § 501(c)(3), but the following conditions existed:

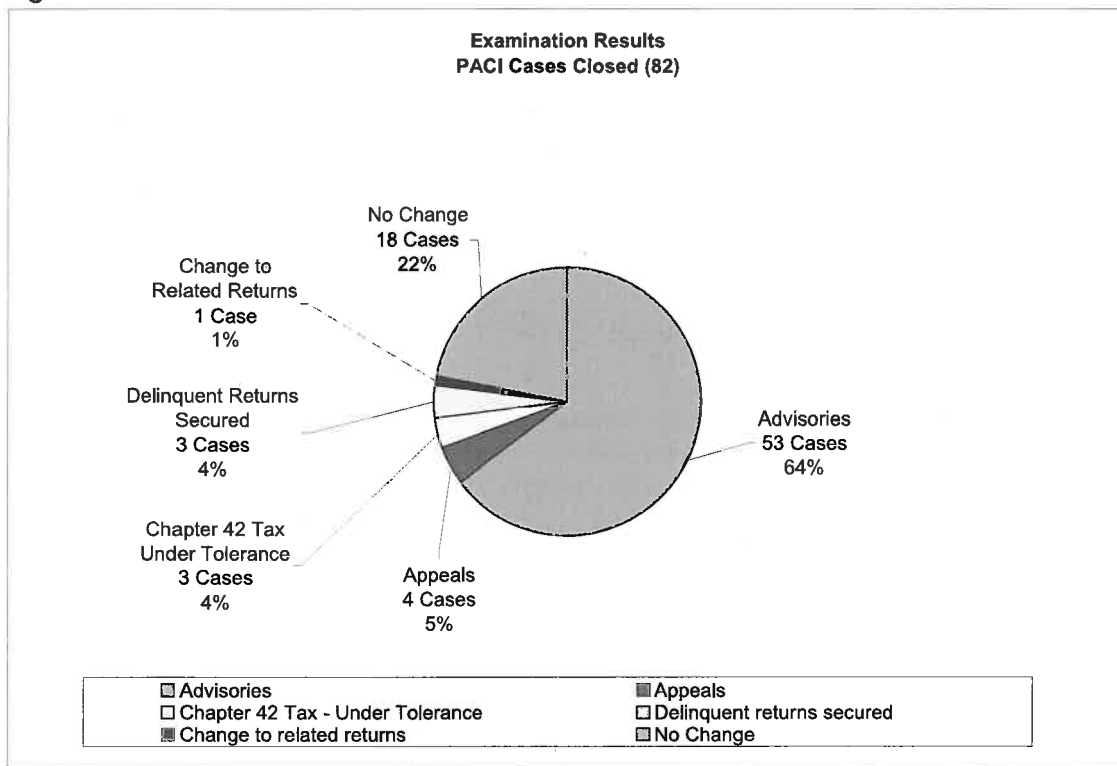

- The act of intervention was of a one-time, nonrecurring nature, or was taken in good faith reliance on advice of counsel, or was otherwise shown to be an anomaly;
- The organization corrected the intervention, including recovery of expenditures, to the extent possible, and established that it had taken steps to prevent any future political intervention within the meaning of § 501(c)(3); and
- The assessment of section 4955 tax was unavailable.

⁶ Excise tax was assessed in one case where political intervention was found. This percentage also includes cases where the excise tax would have been assessed but the amount involved fell below internal tolerance levels.

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

In these circumstances, we believe the PACI objective of promoting compliance was served with minimum burden on organizations by issuing a closing letter that stated the circumstances leading to the examination, the examination findings, and the reasons for resolving the examination without change to the organization's exempt status.

As shown in Figure 9A, below, 45% of the non-church cases were closed with advisories, and 36% were closed with no change.

As shown in Figure 9B, eighty-four percent (84%) of church cases resulted in advisories, and 8% resulted in no change.

Lessons Learned

- We believe the decision to conduct PACI through limited-scope examinations rather than use of “soft contacts” was sound. A program employing soft contacts would have required nearly the same level of resources, but would not have been as likely to have shown positive compliance results.
- We believe the PACI approach provides additional safeguards against the possibility that bias or other improper motives will affect IRS actions, either in selecting an organization for examination or in conducting an examination.
- The PACI identified confusion with the phrase “...does not participate in, or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of statements), any political campaign on behalf of (or in opposition to) any candidate for public office.” Especially, though not exclusively, in cases concerning churches, the phrase had been interpreted to mean that the prohibition on political intervention by § 501(c)(3) organizations was limited to expressly endorsing or opposing candidates. Thus, the majority of the alleged acts of campaign intervention at church services or functions were not express endorsements. In fact, the circumstances often suggested that the pastor made a conscious effort to avoid an express endorsement, yet made an indirect endorsement clearly conveying a message on behalf of, or in opposition to a candidate.

- The fact that examinations were closed “no change” did not mean that the Classification Unit erred in recommending them for examination. The examinations closed no-change generally involved acts of political intervention that were described as and appeared to be actions of the organization, but which were shown, upon examination, to be attributable to someone other than the organization, or the examination disclosed no information to contradict the organization’s explanation of the events.
- Although publicity generated by the PACI was to a large extent outside of IRS control, given the restrictions of § 6103, news articles generated by the claims of some organizations promoted awareness in the EO community of IRS compliance efforts. In addition, the report of the TIGTA PACI audit, issued in February 2005, provided the public with a third-party explanation of the program, assurance that the program was impartial, along with suggestions to the IRS for improvement.⁷
- Using a limited number of designated agents for PACI cases provided a solid skill base. It also made it easier to coordinate and manage “roundtable” conference calls for agents and managers to discuss technical and procedural issues. The conference calls were an effective forum for discussing problems and identifying solutions.

⁷ The Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration (TIGTA) audited PACI and issued a report in February 2005. The TIGTA report concluded that:

- there were no indications that EO inappropriately handled information items reviewed by TIGTA;
- the EO Referral Committee followed a consistent process when reviewing information items, regardless of the source of the allegation or the nature of the alleged political activity;
- TIGTA did not identify any cases in which the same criteria were used to select one information item for examination and to decline a similar item for examination; and
- the information items EO selected and did not select for examination concerned organizations reflecting a variety of political views.

Although the TIGTA report concluded that there was no evidence of political bias in our classification of the information items, the report did make several recommendations, which were considered and are adopted in the new procedures.

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

- Identifying cases as Type A (correspondence) and Type B (field) proved effective in applying the appropriate resources for each case.
- The Deputy Area Counsel attorney was a valuable team member, not only in developing sample letters and other materials and helping coordination with Counsel, but also in providing TE/GE personnel insight into the complexities and resource challenges Counsel faced with this project.
- Developing and using a checklist for agents to complete and electronically submit proved valuable in capturing and analyzing data from the examinations.
- Developing sample questions addressing frequently recurring scenarios to help agents prepare church tax inquiry letters, and sample advisory letters to help agents resolve the cases, were useful aids that also promoted consistent treatment of similar cases. We must emphasize, though, that sample materials must be used with care to ensure they are used appropriately.

Going Forward

- To be effective, the project should be “up and running” by March of the election year or earlier. Given that many acts of political intervention occur in throughout the election cycle, beginning the PACI in July not only created a backlog of cases to handle at the project’s start, but limited PACI’s potential to promote compliance in the election year.
- IRS should provide advance notice that it will conduct the PACI in the Implementing Guidelines for the fiscal year, through media releases and other educational efforts it makes during the election cycle. These communication efforts also will serve to reinforce IRS educational efforts concerning the prohibition of campaign intervention.
- The timeframes for each step of the process should be ambitious but realistic. They also need to be flexible to accommodate business exigencies, but not to the extent that exceptions become the norm. For example, only 16 percent of the Type B cases met the goal of having the initial letter issued within two days of receipt. Taking into consideration managers’ and agents’ case loads and other priorities, this two-day turnaround was unrealistic if considered as a rigid standard or a performance measure. Because managers and agents must plan their calendars in advance, including scheduled field visits and taxpayer meetings, many found it impossible to begin work on a newly assigned PI case before fulfilling prior commitments.

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

- Exempt Organizations should allocate sufficient resources for PACI, especially in the EO Classification Unit and Review, which are critical offices in the project.
- To ensure consistency, a PI Referral Review Committee should be designated to review all referrals for the project. Barring unforeseen circumstances, the three members should serve for the duration of the PACI. As the Committee needs to meet at least weekly, the members should all be from the Dallas, TX, area to avoid travel expenses.
- Tools (e.g., contact letters, sample IDR's, IRM procedures, etc.) should be approved and ready for agents when the PACI begins.
- Technical training on political activity issues is essential, not only for agents, but for all employees and managers with a role in PACI cases. This is important to promote consistent treatment of technical issues, and ensure all personnel appreciate the significance of the PACI in the EO program.
- Managers and agents working "Type B" (field) examinations should have periodic "round table" conference calls to discuss technical and procedural concerns, share ideas, etc.
- EO Examination management needs to assign PACI field examination cases expeditiously and based on the issues raised, availability and experience of agents, and available travel resources, etc.
- Consideration must be given to avoid processing delays in cases, most notably church cases that are inherently difficult to expedite. In referrals concerning churches, the steps required by the IRM to ensure the IRS complies with the requirements of § 7611 - drafting of the church tax inquiry letter by the agent; review by Area Counsel; revision, as needed by the agent; review and approval by the Group Manager, Area Manager, and Area Counsel; review and approval by Mandatory Review, who forwards the file and recommendation to the Director, EO Examinations for approval and signature – require considerable time to complete, even if there are few issues and the facts are clear. When a case presents more complex or difficult issues or facts, each step takes more time to complete. Thus, to ensure church cases are timely processed without sacrificing attention to substantive issues, their process should be closely monitored. Remembering that one of the goals in PACI was to contact organizations quickly and, hopefully, in advance of any subsequent violation, it must be noted that the 7611 rules generally prevent such expeditious contact.

Conclusions

The PACI represented a change for EO Examinations in how the issue of political intervention has been addressed. In years past IRS pursued those organizations upon the receipt of a referral but only where Examination resources were available. PACI made resources available. Many examination groups were reluctant to begin a church inquiry because of the inherent sensitivity of church examinations, difficulties in ascertaining the facts prior to opening the audit, and the complex procedures of IRC § 7611 required a significant commitment of experienced resources.

PACI more directly addressed the issue of prohibited political intervention by § 501(c)(3) organizations on an expedited basis. One goal was to ensure that organizations that had engaged in alleged political intervention activities in the 2004 elections stopped their activities as a result of a contact by the IRS. Another goal was to establish the IRS enforcement presence, which was evidenced by the publicity received on the initiative. This publicity informed the charitable community that IRS was serious about political intervention issues and that organizations that intervene in a political campaign within the meaning of § 501(c)(3) could expect an IRS contact.

One hundred and ten organizations were examined as part of the PACI program. As of February 16, 2006, 82 cases have been closed; only 18 were closed with no change. Seventy-two percent of the organizations examined were found to have intervened in a political campaign within the meaning of § 501(c)(3) and the overall change rate was seventy-eight percent. This high percentage shows that the PACI addressed a significant compliance issue.

Although the total number of organizations contacted was significant, it only represents a small percentage of the § 501(c)(3) population. Therefore, we acknowledge that we cannot measure the overall impact of the program, and it is too early to predict the long term impact on future compliance. Also, the fact that each election cycle presents new and different issues, strategies, etc., makes it likely that IRS will need to continue its efforts.

PACI Team Recommendations

- We believe that the PACI program should be continued. The results of PACI examinations closed-to-date, in which 72% of organizations were found to have intervened in a political campaign within the meaning of § 501(c)(3), establishes that the program is an effective way to address this compliance issue. Although we may hope that the long-term compliance effect will lead to fewer instances of prohibited political intervention, making PACI unnecessary, we have no basis to assume that goal will be achieved in the immediate future.

Project 302 – Political Activities Compliance Initiative Final Report

- We recommend that EO continue to review the program and make improvements to the process, as needed.
- We believe the general approach to resolving cases of one-time, non-recurring acts in which the organization takes steps to prevent future campaign intervention was appropriate, but should be re-evaluated in future election cycles. Additional measures may be needed if a significant number of these organizations are found to engage in political intervention in future years.
- We believe additional guidance to the agents and public would help. Areas include use of the internet and public examples of indirect candidate endorsements. In addition, legislative modifications may be necessary to ensure our ability to effectively regulate the area.
- The PACI team strongly recommends that, in future election cycles, the IRS increase its use of revocation in cases that warrant this sanction. With the significant PACI publicity and the IRS 2006 educational efforts, organizations should clearly have an understanding of the rules and the message that the IRS is serious about enforcing the prohibition.
